HEAR MRS. RANTOUL ON 'LOVE'

Mrs. Lois Burnett Rantoul finished her testimony today in her suit for divorce from Edward L. Rantoul before Judge Hall in the East Cambidge Divorce Court. Before she left the stand the favorite granddaughter of the poet, James Russell Lowell, in her effort to break the ties which bind her to the scion of the Rantoul family, described the ideal love which she had entertained for "Chip" Rumrill, her husband's classmate and chum at Harvard. She described it as "an intellectual affection," saying on the stand:

I forgot my earlier interpretation of love. With Mr. Rumrill I learned a newer interpretation. For this the mind of each must be in accord in everything. That accord was what I found with "Chip." It was this accord, this intellectual sympathy, this attentive kindness, that I had never felt before, had never experienced with any of my relatives, even the closest.

This description by Mrs. Rantoul of her platonic friendship for Chester C. Rumrill was admitted only after a lengthy argument by counsel for both sides.

Decide to Hear Definition.

Judge Hall in admitting this testimony again stated that nothing unlawful in Mrs. Rantoul's relations with Mr. Rumrill was understood or claimed, and in view of that, and to get the proper atmosphere, he decided to hear Mrs. Rantoul's description of her intellectual affection.

Mrs. Rantoul retired from the court-room at the conclusion of her testimony and remained in the anteroom.

The first witness called for the plaintiff, Mrs. Rantoul, was Dr. Albert F. Barnes. He stated that he was not only the physician of Mrs. Rantoul and the children, but a social friend of both husband and wife and had frequently taken dinner at their home.

Dr. Barnes testified that at the Harvard-Yale boat races at New Haven last Spring he had been threatened by Edward L. Rantoul that if he gave adverse testimony to Rantoul in the coming trial of the divorce Rantoul would testify in the trial to alleged facts which would hurt the professional reputation of Barnes. He also reviewed the physical condition of Mrs. Rantoul since he first attended her in 1905, and stated that the operation performed was absolutely necessary.

Doctors Rebuked Rantoul.

Both Dr. Barnes, and Dr. Charles P. Thompson, another of Mrs. Rantoul's physicians who followed him on the stand, testified that after the Rumrill affair they were taken into the confidence of Mrs. Rantoul, and both expostulated with Edward S. Rantoul over his treatment of his wife. Both said that he agreed to do better.

Mrs. Rantoul came into court this morning accompanied by her father, stepmother and a nurse. Edward L. Rantoul arrived early, accompanied by his sisters, Edith, Margaret and Harriet.

Mrs. Rantoul was excused from the stand after completing her testimony.

Judge Hall refused to permit her to describe a physical encounter between William C. Thompson, her attorney, and her husband, Edward L. Rantoul, in Justice of Peace Weston's office in Boston. Mr. Thompson sought to introduce this testimony to show, as he explained," the disposition of Mr. Rantoul when he drops his mask."

Assault Story Barred.

Attorney Thompson asked Mrs. Rantoul to describe an occasion when Mr. Rantoul attempted to assault her in Magistrate Weston's office in Boston in the taking of Miss O'Reilly's deposition, when Thompson interfered and received the assault himself.

On the ground that this was not material and had happened after the filing of the

Cold Here Again; Will Stay a While, Forecaster Says

Avaunt chirping robins, refrigerator heat, anti-Spring violets and dandelions and the rest of the nature fake artist's stock in trade. It is cold again.

The weather man has bidden goodby to the days when we thought we were not going to have any Winter at all. Balmy Spring is still some distant, and he says we are in for a siege of cold weather.

Thompson's 8pm thermometer registered 11 degrees above at 5 o'clock this morning, just to sort of help out the weather man's prediction. The thermometer fell steadily from midnight, and the biting wind, which swept over the city today, made more than few worry about their furnace fires.

Fair and colder is predicted for today, and that means goodby to Spring, overcoats and back to the flannels and mittens until "King Fright" makes up his mind to leave us.

BIG VOTE POLLED IN ELECTION OF MALDEN MAYOR

A fairly good vote was polled in Malden at the special election there today to fill the vacancy in the mayoralty caused by the death of Dr. George L. Farrell. The polls opened at 10 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. The candidates are Charles Schumacher and Owen C. Doonan. Each was nominated in the recent primaries, the former receiving 1,500 votes and the latter 1,186. There are no party designations.

POWDER TRUST IS NOW DISSOLVED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—Judges Gray, Buffington and McPherson, in the United States Court of Appeals this afternoon, approved the form of dissolution of the Powder Trust as carried out by the various companies ordered dissolved last June. The report on the dissolution was sumbitted by counsel for the trust in the presence of the special attorney for the government. The filing of the court's decree closes the case.

SHOW JURY HOW MARSH WAS SLAIN

SALEM, Feb. 18.—The actual trial of William A. Dorr, accused of shooting George E. Marsh, the aged Lynn soap manufacturer, began this afternoon, following a visit by the jury to the scene of the tragedy in Lynn and other places alleged by the State to be connected with it.

The State was prepared this afternoon to outline its case to the jury and put on the first of its witnesses. The courtroom was sought my many spectators, either directly interested in the case or drawn thither by the fascination of a capital case.

Dorr waived his right to accompany the jury on its Lynn trip and was returned to Salem jail while the jurymen were away. They were escorted by Deputy Sheriffs Charles A. Salisbury, John W. Tilton, T. F. Tierney and Frank Bay as they boarded the 10:30 train for Lynn. At Lynn station they found automobiles for the sight-trip required by the case. After being shown all the places that District Attorney Attwill deemed necessary, the party returned to Salem and to the courthouse for the afternoon session.

In Lynn they went first to the lodging house on Parrot street, where Dorr is alleged to have shot a room from Mrs. Richard Leary on March 24; then to No. 10 Union avenue, the home of the murdered man, and from there to No. 11 School street, where Dorr is alleged to have engaged another room just prior to the alleged murder. From there they went to Sibley & Green's garage on Liberty street, where is stored the little red runabout automobile which Dorr is alleged to have abandoned in Boston the day after the murder, before his flight to the West.

This machine is alleged to have been bought second-hand by Dorr a week or two before the shooting. It was found in an alleyway in the West End, Boston, and in it was a Winchester rifle. From this garage they went to the Lynn boulevard and viewed the spot in the marshes where the body was found, fifty feet from the highway.

Dorr, who suffered a physical collapse at his arrest as the slayer of millionaire Marsh, has fully regained his health, and is now the picture of vigor.

HOLLIS SHY EIGHT AS NEW HAMPSHIRE DEADLOCK HOLDS

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 18.—Today's balloting for United States Senator again resulted in no choice, Henry F. Hollis still being eight votes behind the required number for election.

The vote was as follows:

Whole number of votes	400
Necessary for a choice	201
Henry F. Hollis, Dem.	193
Edward N. Pearson, Rep.	161
William J. Britton, Prog.	14
Thomas Chalmers, Rep.	13
Cyprien J. Belanger, Prog.	8
Gordon Woodbury, Dem.	5
Clarence E. Carr, Dem.	2
John H. Bartlett, Rep.	2
Robert P. Bass, Prog.	2

Today for the first time since the balloting began two Democrats, Ferron of Franklin and Cote of Nashua, voted for a Republican.

BOSTON INCREASES IMPORTS IN 1912

An increase in imports at the Port of Boston is announced for the year 1912 at Washington. Imports at Boston for 1912 were valued at $150,018,223, as against $115,682,040 for 1911. Exports at Boston for 1912 were valued at $65,692,348 as against $75,919,896 in 1911.

ENVER BEY DENIES HE WAS WOUNDED

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Enver Bey, the Young Turk leader, who was reported yesterday to have been severely wounded by would-be assassins, telegraphed to some friends here today, denying the reports and declaring that he is safe in the Peninsula of Gallipoli.

TWO views of William A. Dorr, accused slayer of George E. Marsh, the millionaire soapmaker of Lynn. Dorr is shown just after his arrest, when he suffered a physical collapse, and as he appears today, vigorous and cheerful.

ROADS AGREE TO ARBITRATE WITH FIREMEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The conference committee of the railroads, composed of the managers of the fifty-four Eastern railroads, controlling more than 50,000 miles of track, today addressed a letter to the government representatives, Judge Martin W. Knapp of the Commerce Court and Mr. Hanger, acting Secretary of Labor, that they will agree to arbitrate the firemen's dispute under the Erdman act, though only under the strongest protest. The managers also state that they desire that the arbitration proceedings shall be open to the public.

The railroad managers have announced that W. P. Atterbury of Philadelphia, vice-president and general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, will represent the railroads as arbitrator, Mr. Atterbury and Mr. Phillips, representing the firemen, will select the third member of the board.

RAIL MEN SEE RUIN IF FORCED TO ELECTRIFY

Electrification of railroads within a 12-mile zone of Boston was strongly opposed at the State House today by Vice-President James F. Hendis of the Boston & Albany, and President Melvin O. Adams of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn railroads.

"We cannot afford to electrify. Our operating expenses with the continued good service we are giving the public will not allow it," was the plaint of Vice-President Hendis.

"The narrow gauge line which has developed Winthrop so that it has grown faster than any town in the country except two boom towns out West," said President Adams, "will have to send its equipment to the scrap heap if electrification is ordered. It will drive us into bankruptcy. Yet we carry 20,000,000 people a year to as delightful a breathing spot as there is in the world and carry them from congested Boston for a five-cent fare."

RUSH ORDERS SENT TO BATTLESHIPS AT GUANTANAMO, CUBA

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18.—Fighting between the federals and rebels began again shortly after 9 a. m. today, after a tacit truce of several hours. For an hour the firing was desultory, with only a few heavy cannon engaged, but later it swung into a duel between the batteries of President Madero and General Diaz.

The rebels are slowly but surely gaining, having pushed the federal lines back from all their exposed positions. As forecasted yesterday, the rebels seem able to keep up the fight indefinitely without suffering vital losses.

REBEL LINES PUSHED NEARER FEDERALS

When hostilities were renewed, General Diaz had pushed his lines to Insurgentes and Nino streets, only a short distance from the national palace. Diaz declares he would be in full control of the residential district before night, but promised not to throw his shells into that quarter and jeopardize the lives of noncombatants.

Most of the federal troops, including the brigadier from General Blanquet's army which arrived last night were taken into the national palace. The federals will make their last stand there.

After a long lull in the firing several cannon shots disturbed the stillness at 9:03 o'clock. Those near the people in the street scurrying to safety. Silence came down again, but at 10 o'clock a battery let go with a loud detonation. Up to this time there had been no sound of small arms nor machine guns being fired.

Firing Becomes Steady Roar.

At 10:30 o'clock the firing had settled down into a steady roar and it was supposed that the first shots had been fired to warn foreigners off the streets.

The mortar placed on the roof of the National Palace by General Blanquet's men during the night was in action. The aim of the federal gunners was very bad. General Huerta, who received a fine military training in this country and Europe, personally helped to train the guns in order to make their fire effective.

The new pieces of artillery which arrived at the National Palace last night were in action, but did comparatively little damage on the stout stone walls of the arsenal, where the rebels are entrenched.

The rebels tried to swing out their lines in a fan shape, planting artillery in strong buildings in line with the National Palace. The muzzles of the guns were poked through the windows, which formed natural portholes.

Distribute Taft's Reply.

President Taft's reply to President Madero's protest against intervention was printe din pamphlet form here today and distributed among the populace in order to quiet fears over intervention. Madero also hoped that his own prestige might be added to the publication of the cabinet note, in which President Taft in strongest terms recognized and upheld the authority of Madero.

Before the fall opened some of Madero's men had attempted to get closer in the air bend by sparing their way through the main sewers in the heart of the city.

It was reported that these men made up Madero's dynamite squad and were trying to plant bombs containing hundreds of pounds of dynamite in position to blow up the arsenal and kill or wound all the rebels therein, including General Diaz, their leader.

Madero had served notice that the insurgents need expect no quarter unless they surrendered forthwith.

More Loyal Troops Arrive.

Some of General Blanquet's loyal troops arrived early in the night, bringing with them several light field pieces and a mortar.

The mortar was at once mounted on

MRS. RANTOUL ENDS STORY OF 'MIND LOVE' FOR "CHIP" RUMRILL

libel, Judge Hall refused to hear the description. But Mr. Thompson reserved the right to recall Mrs. Rantoul to the witness stand to give this description, in case it became material by subsequent developments.

Mrs. Rantoul testified that she had said to Neal Rantoul, her brother-in-law, that her husband considered his children only as the profits in a note deal.

She testified that she had told Neal Rantoul he and her husband were determined to break her and to get her children away from her.

Permitted to Testify.

Only on the assurance of the physicians in attendance that the strain would not prove fatal to Mrs. Rantoul in her weakened condition, did Judge Hall allow her to take the witness stand.

Continuing, Mrs. Rantoul testified:

Q.—What did you mean by that interpretation of love that you spoke of last night? A.—I mean the interpretation of the word that I never knew of before. Q.—At what should be to accord, and that is what I found.

Q.—When you went to Greenfield did your husband write you and ask you to come home? A.—He did after the threatened suit. He only think he did before.

Q.—While you were there he came to see you? A.—Yes, I asked him to come.

Q.—After he had gone, Mr. Rumrill came to at you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How long did he stay? A.—He came in the afternoon and left on the 5 o'clock train.

Q.—Did you try to get a private sitting room there? A.—Yes, sir, and failed. I came home on the motor Mr. Rumrill sent for me.

Said Brother Interfered.

Q.—Upon the day of the operation, your husband brought you flowers, did he not? A.—The operation was at 9 o'clock in the morning. I received flowers after the operation.

Q.—How many bedrooms did you have at the home you had at Beverly Farms? A.—Apart from the servants' bedrooms there were five. I had one, Mr. Rantoul had one, and the children were in the room across the hall. The two children were in the same room and the nurse with them.

MRS. RANTOUL'S STORY OF MIND-LOVE TOLD UPON STAND

I loved Chippie Rumrill because he was the only one I ever had to offer me intellectual sympathy. He was the only one I ever knew who loved me in that way.

Chippie's love was wonderful. It was such happiness. I could hardly bear to give it up. It was a beautiful mind-love.

I have never seen Chippie since I learned that his love caused my husband pain. I have put him out of my mind in the truest sense. Do I love him now? I can't say.—Mrs. Rantoul in her testimony.

Q.—You also had a spare bedroom? A.—We had two; Mr. Rumrill was the first person to occupy the spare bedroom.

Q.—On the day of your wedding anniversary in 1912 did Mr. Rantoul bring you flowers? A.—I don't remember; he may have.

Q.—Have you said to anybody other than your husband that you could manage your husband if his brother, Neal, had not interfered. A.—I never said that. I said that his brother, Neal, interfered with this case a great deal.

Q.—The feelings between your brother-in-law and your husband were good. A.—Yes, I understand that he is the executor of my brother's will, or was.

After Attorney Hunt finished cross-examining Mrs. Rantoul, Attorney Thompson, Mrs. Rantoul's counsel, took up the redirect examination.

Q.—When was it Mr. Rumhill occupied this bedroom? Just before he went to London.

Q.—What was it you said about Mr. Rantoul, his connections with your children? A.—That he looked upon my children as he did upon the profit in a note deal, and he was determined to get them and to break them, and I get my children away from him. He and Mr. Gatton were alike.

DR. FRIEDMANN ON WAY HERE TO WIN $1,000,000

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Dr. Friedrich Friedmann, discoverer of the internationally heralded live-germ cure for tuberculosis is on his way to America to take up the offer of President Finley of the Acme National Bank of a million dollar fee if the German scientist can, when put to the test, cure ninety-five per cent. of the cases he treats, including that of Ray Paris, the banker's son-in-law.

Opposition from the German government to Dr. Friedmann's leaving the country fearing the secret of his tuberculosis vaccine was apparently wholly withdrawn when the physician a week ago surrendered to Professor Ehrlich, head of the German Bacteriological Department, an allotment of his live-germ vaccine. The government having rejected a tentative proposition that it purchase the remedy, the doctor decided to transfer his field of experiments and activities to America.

Dr. Friedmann left Berlin last night and went aboard the Kronprinzessin Cecile, which sailed today from Bremen for New York.

But the young woman who has figured in the cable reports as a trained nurse, but who Dr. Friedmann has freely said has been his aide assistant, if not, in fact, his collaborator, refused to accompany the physician to America. He thereupon retained an American newspaper man to act as his interpreter, packed up his belongings, including the tubes of the remedy which he claims as one of the greatest discoveries of the age, and left the capitol.

Meanwhile, however, the $1,000,000 offer of President Finley is open to all competitors and there are three other candidates in the field who believe that they have discovered a consumption cure more efficacious than that of Dr. Friedmann.

YOUNG WIFE OF NEWTON ADAMS A STORE MODEL

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Alice Potter Adams, the young wife of Newton Adams and a member of the younger society set at Newport, is now showing model gowns at a department store in New York. Mrs. Adams' superb figure enabled her to get accepted immediately when she applied for a position to parade the costly imported gowns before customers.

It was known here that Mrs. Adams had gone to New York. Then it became reported that she was actually working in a store. But the exact place and nature of her work have not been given out until now.

There is some mystery back of it. Mrs. Adams is not obliged to do this for a living, because she and her husband both enjoy income. Mrs. Adams was formerly Alice Potter, niece of the late Mrs. Sophia E. Hatchford. Three and one-half years ago she married Newton Adams, a young attorney. They have one child, Alice, now one and one-half years old. Mrs. Adams and Alice are living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Adams in Orange, N. J. Newton and Stuart Adams are brothers. Newton Adams is going to move to New York next week to set up law practices there, and he and his wife will live with the Stuart Adamses for the present.

FINE EGG MEN FOR VIOLATING FOOD LAWS

The Bay State Egg Company was fined $25 for violating the State pure food laws by selling impure broken bulk eggs to bakeries. The fine was imposed by Judge Bennett today and confirmed the charges of Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S pure food expert that impure eggs are being sold in Boston.

It was the first of a series of cases being brought by the State Board of Health. The defendants appealed. They are Samuel Kaufman and S. Mailliunt, the proprietors of the company. Attorney Eyges, asked for another postponement, which was refused when it was brought out that there had been five delays already. Attorney Eyges then refused to participate and remained silent throughout the trial.

Inspector of Food and Drugs Marion of the Board of Health testified to having produced three samples of the egg bulk from different cans in the store of the Bay State Egg Company, and delivering them to State Chemist Herman C. Lythgoe. The latter testified that he had examined the samples and found the first distinctly bad and the other two showing signs of decomposition. He was questioned by Judge Bennett as to the lapse of time between the delivery of the samples and the analysis, and testified that it was the same day, or perhaps the next morning, but that the samples had been carefully refrigerated in the meantime.

SOLICIT FUND FOR FAMILIES OF STRIKERS

Immediate steps were taken today for the relief of the needy families of garment strikers. A house to house canvass of the city is under way to solicit food, clothing, fuel and case donations. While the need of immediate help among the strikers is by no means universal, several families need help.

Strike ballots were sent to the individual ladies' garment unions of Boston today for a vote on the question of a general strike of these unions. This strike is held in the trade to be inevitable. Two thousand men and women of the cloak, shirt and shirtwaist makers at a meeting in Faneuil Hall declared themselves ready for a general strike.

The initiative in the relief work was taken by the Independent Workmen's Circle which sent word to strike headquarters today that it would furnish eighty meal tickets daily for the needy strikers. Branch No. 1 of this circle sent $25 to the strike committee today and started the house to house canvass. Collections made on this campaign will be turned in to the headquarters of the Circle at No. 24 Cambridge street each night, and the total collections will be forwarded to strike headquarters at No. 724 Washington street for distribution.

The affiliated trades unions have sent in checks for the relief fund. These range from $25 to $100. The strike committee reported yesterday that notwithstanding the cold and growing necessity of some of the strikers there had not been a single assertion from the ranks of the 3,800 men who are still out. Fifty-one firms have settled to date at union conditions and 1,700 of the original strikers are back at work. The original enthusiasm and solidarity of the strike, according to its leaders, is unbroken.

FOUR BIG RAINCOAT SHOPS IN SETTLEMENT WITH 1,000 STRIKERS

The L. W. W. Raincoat Makers' Union, 1,000 of whom went on strike two weeks ago, has made settlement with four of the largest raincoat manufacturers, and, as soon as agreements are signed, work will be resumed.

Those four firms employ 500 men and women. The employers of some 200 operatives had already made a settlement, which leaves 300 of the union members still on strike.

The union leaders have assured the manufacturers who settled that the strike will not be lifted from those raincoat makers who hold out against the union demands. Those demands are: Fifty hours a week, recognition of the union, standardization of pay and abolition of the "task" system, a workshop term employed in the trade.

MAN DYING; TWO COMPANIONS HELD

Guiseppe Ambriano, twenty-three, of No. 237 Maverick street, East Boston, is dying at the East Boston Relief Hospital with a bullet in his head, and Michael Grosso and Cleston Mangello, No. 75 Frankfort street, East Boston, are under arrest, following a shooting affray in the latter's home, held as suspicious persons pending the outcome of Ambriano's condition. The shooting was the aftermath of a christening.

PARIS PRESS URGES LARGER WAR CHEST

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Europe's race for armed supremacy is bringing out many suggestions in the official press. Influential newspapers here today urged that France adopt Germany's system of compelling every young man to serve three years in the army. All the papers are enthusiastic over increasing the army appropriation, some suggesting that $20,000,000 be added to it.

SENNETT BEGINS PRISON SENTENCE

John Sennett, the mining promoter, who pleaded guilty to the larceny of thousands of dollars from Mrs. Lillian M. Turner of Malden, today began his sentence at the Charlestown State Prison. His term is from three to four years. Sennett was arrested on the charge of stealing $24,000 from Malden, Newton and Brookline women.

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Talk about excitement in Washington over the coming inauguration.

People in New England are not bothering about the inauguration. They are wondering who is going to win the $10,000 capital prize and the other big awards in the AMERICAN'S $40,000 contest.

It is now a matter of days, hours and minutes.

No one knows, no one can tell, what the finish will be.

A few solitary subscriptions may make a big difference when the returns are being tabulated.

A lot of results may be obtained in the remaining ten days. Hundreds of subscriptions may be written. Thousands of coupon votes may be gathered. There is enough time to make a great difference in your final standing.

But there is not one minute to lost to be wasted between the champion and Jack Britton. The promoters also want Ritchie to box either Leach Cross, the East Side lightweight champion of the world, has arrived here. Several of the local boxing managers had a talk with Nolan regarding a match

TIRED 'HIKERS' PRESS ON TO WILMINGTON

CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 18.—"Ta-ra-ra-de-um-de-dum!"

This was the battle song of the hiking pilgrims, sent out on the morning air today by Georgie Milton Wend, the army's energetic little bugler, but it inspired little zest, aching pilgrims. Then General Rosalie Jones stepped forth.

"Forward, girls, forward!" But the army failed for a moment to respond to the command. "Come on, girls, one mile it's for the cause!" she pleaded. "Don't falter just this one day. Tomorrow we'll have a big long rest."

The big brown eyes of the little commander-in-chief swept the hesitating soldiers and smiled into the eyes they met, and the near mutiny was over.

The army swung into line waving its battleflag and trying to keep step to the music by Georgie, the bugler. The nights' rest seemed to have benefited the pilgrims little. The pack of many were jaggard and drawn as the army swung into the open country toward Wilmington, Del., after being escorted to the town limit by a squad of police, a band of local suffragettes and a curious crowd that numbered perhaps 2,000.

An interesting feature of the hike so far is the fact that the two pilgrims who have kept in best physical conditions are vegetarians, Mrs. George Wend and her son, George Milton Wend, of Albany, N.Y.

The pilgrims punctuated their nine-mile hike to Grubb Landing, where the luncheon stop was made by nibbling at imported delicacies donated by a manufacturer in Lebanon, Pa.

General Jones was hopeful that when the army of Wilmington was reached it, too, long delayed "Rattles" presented by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the New York suffragette, would be waiting there for them.

3 FRENCH SAILORS KILLED ON WARSHIP

TOULON, Feb. 18.—Three French sailors on board the battleship Danton were killed today by the bursting of the breech of a gun.

VERA TO RESIGN AS CLERK OF COURT

NEW BEDFORD, Feb. 18.—Frank Vera, Jr., for the past ten years clerk of the Third District Court, announced today he would resign, thus ending the long controversy that has agitated political activity. William J. Glasgow, a New Bedford newspaperman, is Governor Foss' nominee for the position.

TESTS HEALTH BOARD'S RIGHT OF COMMITTAL

A case without precedent in the jurisprudence of Massachusetts comes up tomorrow before the Supreme Court, when a writ goes into court to challenge the right of a board of health to confine a person in hospital or other place of detention on the ground that he has tuberculosis.

The plaintiff is Andrew McCarthy of Varnum street, Haverhill. The defendant is the Board of Health of that city.

McCarthy is now confined at the City Hospital on a commitment order from the District Court and a Board of Health restraining order in which it is complained that he is a menace to the public health on account of tuberculosis.

McCarthy sets up a denial of this and has appealed for a writ of habeas corpus, demanding that he be taken into court and that the physical condition of his person be proven and that he be released because of not being afflicted as alleged.

Attorney Harry J. Cole of the office of Peters, Cole & Tilton sets forth in his petition that McCarthy was committed to the hospital on November 12, 1912, despite his protests and objections; that Louis D. Savage, superintendent at the Haverhill City Hospital, is restraining him without right, and that the Haverhill Board of Health is exposing him to the danger of contracting tuberculosis from contact with two patients who are already suffering from the disease, and he prays for release.

The great question opened up by this case will be whether tuberculosis is in the same class with smallpox, cholera, yellow fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever or any of the dread contagious or infectious diseases which, in defence of the public health, the local authorities are empowered to isolate and keep in quarantine

TO INVESTIGATE OLEO CHARGES

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—United States Judge Landis has ordered a special Grand Jury drawn to investigate alleged oleomargarine frauds. The jury is to convene March 5.

American Girl Suffragette Gets 2 Months Term

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Miss Zelie Emerson, the rich Jackson, Mich., girl, who was arrested last week during a suffragette demonstration for assaulting a policeman, long part in another anti-government outbreak and was again arrested. She was sentenced to two months at hard labor. Upon the occasion of her first arrest Miss Emerson's fines were paid by an unknown man. The policeman who appeared as the prosecuting witness said he had seen her hurl bricks through a half a dozen windows in the Liberal Association Clubhouse.

W. A. Lansbury, a male "suffragette," and son of a former member of Parliament, was sentenced to two months at hard labor in the same court for smashing windows in Bromley Town Hall.

While Mr. Lansbury was being arraigned, his sister, Annie Lansbury, was being arraigned in Bow street police court, charged with smashing windows. She was sentenced to one month at hard labor. Eva Watson, Alice Moore and Sylvia Pankhurst were also arraigned. Each got a month at hard labor save Mrs. Pankhurst, who received the more serious charge of inciting had been lodged. She received two months at hard labor.

TAFT RELATIVE DEAD IN NEW ROCHELLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—William Pitt Taft, eighty-six years old, is dead at his home in New Rochelle, N. Y., from pneumonia. He was a descendant of Robert Taft, an early settler of Medfield, Mass., and an ancestor of President Taft.

MISS REGNIER TO WED SKATING STAR

The engagement is announced of Miss Madone Dolores Regnier, sister of Adrian E. Regnier, former Brown football captain, and J. Morgan. Miss Regnier lives at No. 35 Beaumont street, Dorchester. Mr. Morgan has won prizes as a skater.

RADCLIFFE CATHOLIC CLUB OPEN MEETING

The open meeting of the Radcliffe Catholic club, which meets this afternoon by Miss Margaret McCarthy of Omaha, Neb. The subject of her talk was "The Impressions of a Catholic Woman on a Trip Around the World."

SOLDIER'S WIFE LEADS LINE OF SUFFRAGETTES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—One of the busiest women in the land today is Mrs. Richard Cole Burleson, who is to act as grand marsaal of the grist woman suffrage parade, to take place here on March 3.

Mrs. Burleson is the wife of Lieutenant Burleson, U. S. A. She is regarded by her friends, both in and out if the suffrage cause, as peculiarly fitted for the trying duties of grand marshal of this unique demonstration.

She is clever, has a head for detail, enjoys high social position and, what is not undesirable in a feminine marsaal, is possessed of much personal charm.

As inauguration time approaches Mrs. Burleson finds herself more and more absorbed in the multitude of arrangements which she has undertaken. There are problems of the most serious charge of precedent and no end of other big and little problems confronting the fair marshal daily.

These details Mrs. Burleson had in complete command, thus demonstrating again her friends assert, the utter equality of woman with man, whether it be for marshaling or marketing.

BOYS' CLUB BUYS WORCESTER SITE

WORCESTER, Feb. 18.—The "best boys' club in the world" is the boast made by the club directors when they authorized today the purchase of 22,237 square feet of land at the corner of Beacon street and Ionic avenue, upon which a building will be erected. The price paid for the new property was a little less than $1 per square foot. The Worcester Boys' Club is one of the oldest in the country. The campaign for the collection of funds to build will begin immediately.

MARINE FIRE SIGNAL USED FIRST TIME

For the first time since it was installed, the marine fire signal has been sounded in the harbor. The crew of a lowboat discovered smoke issuing from the steamship North Haden of the Eastern Steamship Company, lying at Long Wharf, and the marine signal summoned Fireboat 47.

CAMBRIDGE POET AND PUBLISHER DEAD IN JERSEY

Colin Grant McKenzie, poet, woodprinter and publisher, for several years a resident of Cambridge, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. C. Lockhart of Bound Brook, N. J. Funeral services will be held in the chapel at Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, at 12:30 tomorrow noon.

Mr. MacKenzie was probably the oldest printer in New York city. He was a native of Banff, Scotland. He was the first man in New York to make unusual overlays, and did expert work for leading publishers. A publisher in Cambridge with the University Press, he became a friend of Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Holmes, Bryant and other literary men, and also published the first volume of his own poems.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

'DON'T GET ICY;' JUST SLIDE IN SOME $5 SLANG

Now that prominent professors and teachers of Boston have either approved of good slang, or admitted practically that it is the sign of development in language, and that the slang of today is often the most correct language of tomorrow, the AMERICAN contest for the prize of $5 for the most original and valuable slang word or words, taken on a serious interest.

To improve and enrich the language is a laudable thing, and the many contestants who are sending in samples of their originality and knowledge in the use of words may be doing a great good. The AMERICAN doesn't want a lot of street phrases and expressions, for one the many trade remarks that are sometimes used desired. They will have no chance in this competition.

What is wanted is the word or words which mean something, show originality of thought, and have a chance to become of value.

A learned professor has called attention to the fact that the word "grit" was once a slang word, but now is recognized as decent English. Its stand successor, "sand," may yet be admitted and be welcomed. So the contestants should show grit and sand in the game of coining new words. Send in as many as you desire. There is no limit, or as the say in poker, "the sky is the limit."

Frank Mondello of No. 51 Bainbridge street has the right idea. He expresses himself as follows: "Don't get icy, or I'll slide all over you." He also suggests, "Hang, cheese on your toes, you are dead," and "Light up, kid, you're smoldering."

A. B. Hollywood of No. 22 Reed street, East Boston, thinks that "chemical" is a good substitute for "cool or "cleek." Eddie Murray of No. 6 Broad place, Montello, says: "Step, you will be tongued-tied from talking."

Miss Martha Welsh of No. 50 Winslow road, Roxbury, thinks that, "Skiddley-kit, I'm with you," ought to bring home the broom.

ANGELA MORGAN TELLS HOW MRS. CHASE LIVES AS DENNETT SOULMATE

ANGELA MORGAN

Angela Morgan, the noted writer, today presents in the AMERICAN the first of a series of articles on the home life of Mrs. Margaret H. Chase, wife of Dr. H. Lincoln Chase, of Brookline, who is living as a "soulmate" with Hartley Dennett, former Boston architect, on a farm at East Alstead, N. H. Miss Morgan's story of what she saw in the home and on the farm make the beginning of a remarkable chapter in the strange story of the wife whose unconventional life is approved by her husband.

In the succeeding articles, the second appearing tomorrow, Miss Morgan will tell of Mrs. Chase, the mother; Mrs. Chase, the humanitarian, and what she has done; what the village folk think of her and of her creed. The first article follows:

By ANGELA MORGAN.

"I have absolutely cut myself off from the world. I do not care what it thinks of me, or what it says of me. I have made a new world for myself and in it I live and work and am happy. I am responsible only to myself."

Thus spoke Mrs. Margaret E. Chase, least insurgent to fight the established social order, whose whereabouts is the New Hampshire hills was discovered by the AMERICAN after a complete gap of four years. During this period, Brookline society had wondered what became of Mrs. Chase when she vanished so completely from the accustomed life of social and church duties.

And now, suddenly, the woman whose friendship for the Harvard architect, Hartley Dennett, caused a stir in the conventional world four years ago—although that friendship was and still is sanctioned by Dr. H. Lincoln Chase, the husband—comes forth into the light as a female Martin Luther, with courage, truth and frankness, ready to die, if need be, for her cause.

Confessing herself a disciple of the great Tolstoi who preached the return to the soil, sinking at the wholly selfless spirit of a Buddha or a Christ, Mrs. Chase is living on a farm in Alstead, N. H., working out a new order for herself and those nearest her.

This cultivated Brookline woman, accustomed to servants and a life of ease, now lives a life of unremitting work, a marvel even to the sturdiest farmers. If you smoke to excess, one tells like any peasant, not only doing the labor of a farm, but helping her neighbors for miles around in a hundred different ways.

Dennett in Same Household.

With Mrs. Chase are her two children, trained to the same habits of work and study. And in the same household is Hartley Dennett, who has been living with them for four years. Dr. Chase, staunch in his approval, comes up to visit his family and his friend about once in two months or so.

"The world must let me live my life as I see fit," declared Mrs. Chase. "I have reached the point where I care absolutely nothing for what other people think. Until a human being arrives at that stage, he is not free."

I sat with this remarkable woman at her hearthstone in the lonely farmhouse. I ate with her and her children the simple Sunday evening meal. I talked with her in the firelight.

What is she like, how does she dress, what is her manner, her personality? First I must tell you of my introduction to her, how I saw her first, for it was not in the firelight that we met. It was out in the bleak, snow-filled air on a late Sunday afternoon. I had just driven up to the house.

She was standing beside the pump, where a wife-hatred neighbor woman was driving me. I saw at once that the straight trim figure, in its masculine costume, was that of a farmer youth. Then suddenly she turned and looked at me and I knew.

Wears Corduroy Bloomers.

The eyes that sent that vigorous, lightning look were the eyes of Mrs. Chase, the insurgent, at war with the customs of society, at war with its dress, its habits, its artificial standards of life.

I saw a strongly moulded, striking face with clear honest eyes, resolute mouth and determined chin. The brown hair, tinged with gray, swept gently back from the wide forehead. Her masculine throat was bare to the wind. She carried two pails of milk, her shoulders thrown back to the weight on each arm.

She wore dark blue corduroy velvet bloomers, with blouses to match and a loose white shirtwaist and tie. Her head was bare and she seemed oblivious of the cold air.

"Will you come in and have supper with us? We are just about to sit down. We can talk freely at table, before my children and any guest I might have. My life is an open book. There is nothing about it that cannot be talked of frankly."

Mrs. Chase Kindles Fire.

She led the way to the door. "If you will go into the living room, I will have the fire for you in a few minutes, children! Help mother to build a fire and put on the supper. Son, you get the kindling, you're the oldest. Now about the salad dressing!"

The children flew to do her bidding, for they, too, live the gospel of work. Mary, the daughter, went out to get more water at the pump. Her bright hair was windblown, her cheeks still tinged with the outdoor air when she returned to the room.

Mrs. Chase, the woman who four years ago had servants to do such things for her, got down on her knees beside the hearth and re-kindled the fire herself, giving a deep answering smile to her son on the proper way to do it.

"You're on, Mary!" she said.

Mrs. Chase went about briskly, lightfooted and alert. From living room to kitchen, and back again, then outdoors to do more chores while the water boiled for the tea.

"You must excuse me, this is such a busy time for me. In fact, I am always busy. I will be back in a moment."

Calls Her Noblest Woman.

The room I sat in was simply, almost severely furnished. The barn door was relieved by a few well-chosen, artistic rugs, the windows were attractively draped. Potted plants, books, a few pictures, and a couch covered with art denim, made touches of homelike charm. In the centre of the room was a mahogany table, but it was not from this the family ate. On a low sewing table directly before the fireplace, the meal was being spread, set out by one tiny daughter brought dishes to add to the repast.

Out in the kitchen the kettle began to sing, and I heard Mary singing, too. Joan, the man who helps with the chores, came stamping in, shaking the snow from his boots. The second farmer woman, white haired and kindly eyed, came to the door and spoke to me.

"Mrs. Chase is the noblest woman God ever made," she said. "She's a good woman. She's good, that what she is. Nobody can breathe a word against her."

Then Mrs. Chase herself came in. "Hush," she whispered kindly to the woman. "Hush. You mustn't talk of me."

The woman went away. Things were bubbling and singing again on the kitchen stove.

"Supper is ready," said Mrs. Chase. She sat and served the simple meal with all the grace of the accustomed hostess she is. Had the plates been of gold, her manner could not have been more charming, her hospitality more delightful.

When things were cleared away, she sat down again in her low rocker before the hearth and we had our firelight talk.

On one side of her sat Mary, reading a fairy tale. On the other, her son, Hemon, also engrossed with a book. At her feet the family pet, Don, a huge St. Bernard, stretched himself contentedly.

Doesn't Care for Public Opinion.

Hartley Dennett, whose wife last week was granted a divorce from him, was not present at the home. He had gone into Boston on business, it had been said. Whether his visit to the city was in any way connected with the present litigation for the custody of Mrs. Dennett's children, was not explained. He was expected back at the farmhouse very soon.

"If one would be deeply true to a principle," said Mrs. Chase, "he must have the spirit of Martin Luther, and be ready to die, if need be, for his cause. There should be no flinching, no turning back, when he has once taken his stand."

She said this in response to something I told her of a woman's sacrifice for principle, her right to be true to it and yet conform to the actual demands of life.

"There is no excuse for wavering, absolutely none, for the true martyr;

Girls' Suicide Club Revealed to Police of Rome

ROME, Feb. 18.—That a suicide club, similar to that about which Robert Louis Stevenson wrote, exists in Rome was revealed to the authorities today by one of its members. The city was shocked several days ago by three young girls attempting suicide together by locking arms and jumping into the Tiber River. One of the girls was saved and since then she has been under detention by the police.

unless we are strong enough to fight through to the end, we are not strong at all. We should stick, even to the point of death."

Her eyes shone in the glow of the firelight, the color surged into her sensitive face.

"I care nothing for the opinion of other people. I really mean it when I say that I haven't the slightest feeling of resentment if I am misjudged, misrepresented. I have gone far away from the 'world' as it is called. have left it entirely."

She spoke of "the world" as if it were another planet.

Says World Doesn't Understand.

"The world is not ready for my views of life," she stated, in answer to another question. "The world would not understand, it is not yet ready."

She turned her face to the fire and gazed musingly into the red glow. "In the meantime, she went on, "I must follow the dictates of my own individual conscience, regardless of what others may believe. It is for me to decide."

"Mother?" spoke up her young son, bringing forward a book, "Mother, aren't you going to read to me, as you promised?"

"He wants you to read 'Tom Brown's Ride,' Mary explained her. "You see you would read to him before he went to bed."

"And so I shall, dear!" Mrs. Chase reassured him, while her face lighted with radiant mother love. "Mother will put down her work and the promise she made."

We were talking about the individual's right to choose his own career.

"Oh," cried Mrs. Chase, suddenly, while her eyes lighted up again, "I wish I could tell just what I really feel. Do you remember, when the Craig-Wentworth story was before the public, and the papers asked their readers to contribute letters telling what they thought of her act? Oh, how I longed to write just what I really believed. Because nobody in all that symposium really said what I believed."

"Didn't you agree with any of them?"

"No. Not one came anywhere near the real root of the matter, not one touched the actual spirit that seemed to feel the essential thing. You see, there is one essential point. How what is the use of my saying it? As I said, the world would not and could not understand."

Calls Herself a Farmer.

We talked then, of books and philosophers and mysticism, for on the window sill I had found one of Maeterlinck's works, and I was eager to tell me what she thought of his views.

"I am not a mystic," she disclaimed. "Of course I read the philosophers, but I am an extremely person for my years. I live as I live practically and normally, I am strictly a practical woman."

"Your life, then, is better represented by this agricultural picture?" I suggested, smiling, as I picked up one of the many magazines on farming scattered about.

"I am a farmer, yes," she said. "We had a garden and we had to work in it. The gospel of work is the gospel I preach."

But she said it so simply and unassumingly that I would not have known, if others had not told me, what a terrific worker this woman is.

That is Mrs. Chase's most characteristic—an utter lack of self-consciousness. She is so modest, that her own work and activities seem of little account. Of herself, she will not talk of the tremendously active life she is living there in the little New Hampshire village, where the natives fairly worship her and call her, "The noblest woman God ever made."

MANY SURPRISED AT FINE RESULTS FROM NEW REMEDY

"Many people who have been reading the different testimonials of Tona Vita that have been published from day to day must have been surprised at the various ailments that this tonic relieves," said John Beazley Webb, the nerve specialist.

"Tona Vita is purely a nerve tonic, but so great a control has the nervous system over the rest of the body that it can cause symptoms of sickness to appear in any of the different organs. For this reason we are very careful never to report the same testimonial twice, so that we may, if possible, print statements from people who have suffered from every variety of nervous debility.

"Today I am publishing the statement of Anthony Rauner, 26 Sullivan street, Charlestown, who said:

"I have taken Tona Vita and find that it has helped me greatly. Last June I procured a bottle and the effect was very good. I unhesitatingly recommend it for all cases of nervous debility."

"Tona Vita has an extremely wide range of symptoms," continued John Beazley Webb. "In fact, any of the following may denote its presence: Poor appetite, depression of spirits, costiveness, heartburn, pains in the head, night sweats or a general run down feeling. It is also very good for preventing colds.

"Tona Vita can be obtained at any leading drug store in Boston."

"CASCARETS" THE BEST LAXATIVE

No Headache, Biliousness, Constipated Bowels or Sour Stomach by Morning.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get the desired results with Cascarets, and quickly, too.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets tonight; make sure and be free headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress and cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little bodies need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

BIG RUSH TO POLLS TODAY IN CAMBRIDGE

The 12 o'clock whistle in Cambridge today was the starting signal for a Democratic Marathon run for the city primaries.

With ninety-three Democratic candidates seeking thirty-five offices, the rush for voters was "simply fierce," as Happy Hooligan expresses it.

The polls will remain open until 9:30 o'clock this evening. The Democrats had the primaries almost wholly to themselves. The Republicans, who were beaten last year, put up no candidates. The Young Men's Progressive Municipal League has two candidates for mayoralty nomination.

But the Democrats have the following grand assortment of candidates for nominations.

Five candidates for one mayor.

Eight candidates for one assessor.

Forty-three candidates for eleven aldermen.

Thirty-seven candidates for twenty-two common councilmen.

The candidates rounded up voters by auto, by carriage, by horse, and it was reported at 1 o'clock that one candidate was making the rounds of his district with a wheelbarrow. The candidate's cry was "Let not a single vote escape."

The main interest is in the mayoralty nomination. Mayor J. Edward Barry sees no reason why he should not have a third term. But former Superintendent of Parks James A. Montgomery, President James F. Barrett of the Board of Aldermen and Alderman Charles H. Gaffney and Michael O'Connor all think otherwise. Each seeks to succeed Mayor Barry.

WALTHAM WATCH CO. CANNOT FIX PRICE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The United States District Court has decided that the Waltham Watch Company has no right to fix prices for the resale of its patented articles. The decision will affect nearly every manufacturer in the country. The action was brought by the Waltham Watch Company against a New York jeweler to restrain him from selling a watch lower than the price set by the company.

WANT MACLAURIN TO MAKE WESTERN TRIP

The February bulletin of the Tech Alumni suggests that President Maclaurin travel to the Pacific coast this summer, "in order that not only the alumni but the people of that section may see the president and learn at first hand of Technology's great development." The alumni are again urged to swell the alumni fund for Tech's new buildings.

EUROPE LEADS IN FIGHTING CONSUMPTION

Great Foreign Remedy Now Being Used in New York.

Specialists in Europe have been fighting Consumption during the last few years with great success by means of Sanocrysin, a German product of synthetic origin.

This is of great interest to sufferers in this country, as the climate has been considered the great specialist and is now to become the last resort in the treating of the disease here as it is abroad.

Sanocrysin, though very powerful in attacking the latter-to-health, contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. It seems to agree with the most delicate stomach, and creates an appetite that is simply ravenous. A healthy man, this medicine is a great tonic builder.

Additional information about Sanocrysin can be obtained by addressing the Sanocrysin Agency, 1328 West Broadway, New York City. Hay-Javens Drug Stores and all leading druggists are advertising Sanocrysin with considerable success.

CLAIMS SHE IS FRANZ JOSEF'S SECRET CHILD

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The remarkable claim that she is the secret child of Emperor Franz Josef and the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria is made by the Countess Zanardi Landi, now living in London, and who says she will shortly publish a book detailing her early life. She says the most convincing proof of her claim is the resemblance of herself and her two children to the late Empress, to Emperor Franz Josef and to Mad King Ludwig of Bavaria, who was the Empress's cousin.

The countess' story is that the Emperor promised the Empress that her next child should be born secretly, so as to live free from the restrictions of court etiquette, which was the Empress' dearest wish. Accordingly the birth took place at the Chateau Sassetot, in Normandy, where the Emperor visited his wife incognito.

For the first seven years of its life, the child lived with a banker's wife and a dressmaker. The Empress, when calling about her gowns, visited the child, who was taught to address her as "Aunt Elli."

Afterward the mother provided a separate establishment for the girl, in a villa at Lainz, where "Aunt Elli" told the child she was her mother.

Later on, through a servant's gossip, she learned that her mother was the Austrian Empress.

The Countess says that she has reason to think that the Empress bequeathed her a large sum of money, which she never received.

Wellesley Girls Seek Late Trains For Men Callers

Wellesley College has a Mexican revolution all its own.

The girl "rebels," who say they want what they want when they want it, having already asked the faculty for an extra hour for social activities at night, are going to petition the Boston & Albany Railroad to let the college enjoy a "late train."

At present the last train leaves Wellesley at 10.40 p. m. for Boston, and the faculty claps the lid on social calls at 9:45. The girls want this hour extended until 10:45, and moreover want the last Boston & Albany express to stop at Wellesley at 11:20.

The girls call 9:45 the "good night" hour. It is the hour when on Sunday nights they have to bid adieu to their men visitors.

GUESTS DAZZLED BY GLOBE TROTTER AND HIS $50,000 IN GEMS

POLICE ASK THAT TWAIN 'DO TIME' IN CLOCK THEFT

David F. Murray, forty-two, of Providence, and Thomas McGlinchey, forty-two, of Boston, will be arraigned in the Municipal Court today on a charge of stealing a clock after they attempted a holdup in the office building at No. 28 School street. The police thought the two men may be sentenced to "do time" for "stealing time." They will also be arraigned on the charge of assaulting H. W. Rutland, sales manager of the Ray State Grocery Company, who gamely fought the pair off and led to their capture by telephoning the police.

The two men entered Mr. Rutland's office.

"We want money," said Murray. "We've just got out of State prison and we've got to have money quick, d'ye see?"

Murray asked his pal where his "gun" was. Mr. Rutland grappled with them. Both fled. On the way downstairs, they visited the office of Attorney J. Winthrop Pickering, and Murray is alleged to have taken the clock from the wall.

At the street they were met by Patrolmen Hall and Sullivan. Murray looked indignant.

"Don't take hold of me like that," he said. "I'm an honest clockmaker, I am. I am taking this to repair it."

The policemen told them to come along and "tell it to the captain."

Neither of the men had a weapon when searched.

Women Planning $10,000 Necklace For Mrs. Taft

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Somebody in Washington cannot keep a secret, and so the carefully guarded plan of society leaders in the capital to give Mrs. Taft a $10,000 diamond necklace has become known. Miss Mabel Boardman has just returned from New York, where she gave the order to a jeweller.

The cost will be defrayed by a large number of women who have been entertained by Mrs. Taft and who have had her as a guest at their homes during the stay of the Tafts here.

A photograph of the necklace now possessed by Mrs. Taft was furged over to the jewellers who will make the gift in order that here may be no duplication in the design.

WOMAN SUES DUVEEN BROTHERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Charlotte Spitzner has brought suit against Duveen Brothers, art importers, for $20,000, alleged commission lost on the sale of the King of Spain's Don Quixote tapestries, which are valued at $1,700,000. She claims that the Duveens found out from her where the tapestries were, and instead of buying through her, purchased them outright, for J. Pierpont Morgan.

PUFFER SEEKS PASTORATE AT READING, PA.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Puffer, the central figure in the famous "trial separation" from his first wife and who has asked the First Universalist Church of Salem, of which he is pastor, to retire him at once following the publicity given his second marriage, may become pastor of the Universalist Church at Reading, Pa., it became known today. The Salem church was stirred following the clergyman's recent marriage to Mrs. Vose Emery, his housekeeper, who figured prominently in the domestic troubles of the minister and his first wife. The pastor kept his second marriage a close secret for ten days.

Rev. Dr. Puffer stated in his message to the church that he will vacate the local pulpit with the most cordial feeling for all members of the church and parish. The standing committee of the church will take formal action next Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Puffer's recent marriage to Mrs. Emery was not approved by all the parishioners. In 1907 he figured in a "trial separation" with his first wife, Pauline Puffer, whom he wedded in 1884. The "trial" did end as planned, and Mrs. Puffer was later divorced.

JOHN D.'S ALMONER BACK TO THE FARM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — The Rev. Frederick Taylor Gates, almoner to John D. Rockefeller, has purchased 25,000 acres of cotton and corn land in Moore County, North Carolina, and will grow cotton.

Dorothy Deacon's Pet Lion Attacks Child in Rome

ROME, Feb. 18.—The young lion, which Princess Rudinelli (Dorothy Deacon), made famous by riding in a chariot by its side at the Skating Club ball, has just proved if is no tame king of beasts. For it sprang upon a child at the Zoo and savagely clawed its scalp.

In a specially constructed jungle, the lion has been allowed to roam at large. The four-year-old child of Count Maceal, who recently was Italian minister to Argentina, toddled into the "jungle" to pet the lion.

All at once the beast attacked the little one. Women fainted and men shouted for help. Finally some keepers beat the animal off and rescued the child which was painfully lacerated, but will recover.

This lion is one of the two wild beasts with the aid of which "Princess Dolly" caused the greatest sensation of the society season, riding into the ball room in the chariot of a lion tamer seated in a chariot drawn by a thoroughbred pony and reclining between a magnificent leopard on one side and on the other the young lion.

Neither animal was muzzled or fettered, and "Princess Dolly" was prodigal in her caresses and sweetmeats. But a guard with revolver, dagger and whip followed close behind, keeping a watchful eye on every movement of the pair.

NEVADA DIVORCE BILL TO GOVERNOR

CARSON CITY, Nev., Feb. 18.—The divorce bill requiring a residence of a year instead of six months is before the governor for his signature today. It is believed he will sign it. If he does it will become effective January 1, 1914.

ASKS $150,000 FOR THE MALDEN P. O. BUILDING

The people of Malden are keenly stirred over the fight of Congressman Roberts for a larger appropriation for the proposed new federal building than the government seems willing to make.

There are two alternatives, says the Congressman. "Either we must have $200,000, or we will take nothing," is his statement.

Roberts threw a bomb shell into the Democratic camp during a debate on the Public Buildings bill at Washington. Chairman Fitzgerald of the House Appropriations Committee had been scoring the House for lavish expenditures, and was detailing some of the amounts which small towns were demanding for public buildings. At this juncture, Congressman Roberts rose, and asked that the item calling for an appropriation of $50,000 be stricken from the bill.

WELLESLEY GIRLS HEAR DR. ELIOT

Many Wellesley undergraduates who intend to become missionaries in the Far East are studying today the lecture delivered to them by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president-emeritus of Harvard. The address was given to practically the entire student body, and was a talk on the influence of our missions in China and Japan.

A Regular Necktie Party

Not ONE undesirable tie in the lot. This maker does not make that kind. We look to him for the very choicest of our domestic scarfs, as do most of the smart shops for men in this country. He makes no tie to sell for less than $1.

More in joke than in earnest, the other day we made a lump sum cash offer for all the odd ties and half-dozens that he had left after filling his season's orders.

Because we are very good customers, and because the maker wanted to make a clean sweep, he took us up—just like that. And this is what he produced:

4848 Fine Ties—Folded squares, French four-in-hands, extra large imperials, regulation open-end four-in-hands and Ascots. Full liberal shapes. Ties of the kind you are glad to wear when the waistcoat is shed in the summer time.

Prodigal variety of patterns—quiet, pronounced and in-between. Many rich Oriental effects, Garden of Allah and Bulgar colorings. Plain colors for the man who will wear nothing else.

They go on at 8:30 tomorrow morning. Nearly five thousand ties, but a great many kinds. To make sure of getting your kind, we advise an early visit to the Men's Shops. 45c for $1 to $3 ties is not a daily occurrence.

EXTRA: For the man who must have Knitted Ties, we have added to this sale 339 from our own stock. These are worth $1 and upward, and will be sold at the same price as the others—45c

10,660 pieces AMERICAN AND IRISH NECKWEAR

Spring Styles at Savings of 1-3 to 1-2

Not a piece of "marked-down" Neckwear in this sale. 10,660 pieces all fresh, clean, new, fashionable.

It took us months to plan some of the neckwear in this sale. The first requisite was that all must be not only up-to-the minute in style—it must be ahead.

Hence the preponderance of Dutch styles, which Fashion tells us will overshadow all other Spring neckwear vogues.

To get these prices required no end of planning with manufacturers; it required expert knowledge of the world's markets and importations, whose price went down as quantity went up. Tomorrow you may see the results. (Street Floor)

NEWS OF ATTRACTIONS AT THE BOSTON PLAYHOUSES

"ANTIQUE GIRL" AND OTHER FINE ACTS SCORE AT NATIONAL

Jesse L. Lasky's big production, "The Antique Girl," a miniature musical comedy, is one of the big features of the fine and attractive bill presented at the National Theatre and proved a strong drawing card. The scene of the act is laid in a New York antique shop. The patrons of the shop are signified by a voice which comes from an ancient vase. Ted Landolf adores the voice and in a fit of curiosity finds out to his surprise that it is none other than Sally, his sweetheart.

Miss Mae Busch took the part of Sally. George M. George was Jonathan Phinney. Earl Montain had the part of Ted Landolf. All three were superb.

The rest of the bill proved at equally attractive and presented the following: Paula Reeves, a dainty singing comedienne; Edward De Cosia, assisted by Miss Helen Le Sage and Fred I. Lewis, in a one-act playlet, "Red Hot"; Bert Bradley, with new songs; John Geiger, who can make a violin talk; John Dooley and Billy Parker, two nifty dancing comedians; Ray Carlin, a clever ventriloquist; Nevins and Erwood, in "The Coal Man and the Maid"; Derwin Trio, sensational acrobatic athletes and last, but not least, the beautiful Kinematador motion pictures.

IS YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE COATED?

If Cross, Feverish, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean Its Little Clogged-Up Bowels.

Mother! Don't send your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue. See if it is white, yellow and coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't play heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, hasn't any appetite, has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste-clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

TOPNOTCH SHOW AT KEITH'S WINS BIG APPLAUSE

Mr. A. B. C., who sat on the end seat of row H, at Keith's Theatre, pronounced the show the best he had ever witnessed. Judging from the applause after each act everybody else who had a seat agreed with Mr. C.

As a well balanced high class vaudeville entertainment the bill this week is one of the best ever produced at Keith's. There was not a dull act during the entire evening. The show could have been cut in two and could have begun, as Mr. C said, "a dandy."

Seymour Felix and Amelia Caire in "Then and Now" introduced their impersonations of stage celebrities. Their handling was topnotch.

"The Coward," a one-act playlet, captivated the audience. It was produced by Robert T. Haines and Company. In a word it conveyed the oft repeated adage that there is always a little good in every man. The piece brought out the better ideals in Richard Harper, an escaped convict, who had reformed in an endeavor to win back a place in society and the hand of a noble woman. Of course everything came out right in the end and just as the audience wished.

The playlet was followed by a bit of rare Irish comedy by James B. Donovan and Charles M. McDonald, who presented, "My Real Old Fiddle." There was a laugh every minute. Madden and Fitzpatrick in "The Wanderer" earned their share of applause. Miss Adelaide Norwood, opera star, gave the audience a rare treat with a repertoire of popular selections.

Burley and Burley, big two Scotch comedians, Will and Kemp, the acrobats, and Billy Sharp and Beatrice Turck, in a neat dancing sketch, proved that they were vaudeville performers of the first rank. The Willis Family, in a novelty musical production, pleased the big audience so much that apparently they could have remained on the stage the entire evening.

WOMEN ARE WISE

when they read the Store News in the American every day.

Globe Theatre.

An unusually novel program was offered the Globe patrons yesterday and the big crowds enjoyed every minute of the six fine numbers. The Joe DeKos Troupe, billed as the "Human Jugglers," supplied as unique an acrobatic act as Boston has been for a long time, and The Arion Quartette sang their way into immediate favor. Clark and McCullough had a grotesque novelty, and Irene and Buddy Smith gave a clever pair of girls and their singing and piano playing scored easily. The Herculean Lasalgos were a pair of athletes the women doing her full share of the difficult work, while Friedland and Clark made friends with their comedy playlet, "The Wrong Mr. Smith." Whistling whistled popular and classics, and Kelly and Davis danced to several encores. Frank LeMair pleased with his banjo, and the picture program, headed by the Pathe Weekly, was interesting. No one ceased was the last Thursday evening concert by the Newsboy's Band that they have been engaged for another concert next Thursday evening.

Gaiety Theatre.

Joe Hurtig's "Social Maids," with all the brilliant burlesque trimmings that has made the show popular, began a week's engagement at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. It was a lively day for the boys who like sightly maidens in dashing songs. With its somewhat extensive assortment of pretty girls, the "Social Maids" had no difficulty in making their feet upon the city's two audiences. A half dozen comedians assisted in the general festivities, but the show, for the most part, ran to girls with nimble toes.

Orpheum Theatre.

At the Orpheum yesterday there was another good show, with Eddie Herron, the "Ill Holler" of "Way Down East" as a star feature in "Jimmy Pinkerton's First Case." On the bill were Clark and Verdi, Italian comedians; Maurice Wood, vaudeville's impersonator of Eva Tanguay; Rappelee and Pisarelli, gymnasts; and the Wood Comedy Four, in "A Mixed Affair."

New Palace Theatre.

Those who prefer melodrama can find it at the New Palace Theatre this week. "In a woman's Power" was featured in the new program yesterday and it sent two reels of thrills and sensations over the audience. Another lively picture was one showing Italian Cavalry at drill. This was really a brilliant exhibition of horsemanship. New songs were also included in the day's bill.

Howard Athenaeum.

"The Cherry Blossoms" brought three hours of fun to the Old Howard yesterday. There were incidental vaudeville features.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Dakota Dan broke into vaudeville yesterday by being used as a benefit subject at the Bowdoin Square theatre. The bill was lively from start to finish.

Loew's South End.

It was pleasure to see Bernhardt again—at least, that is what was freely said at Loew's South End theatre yesterday, where the Divine Sarah made her appearance in a six four-part film of "Queen Elizabeth." To those who have said the prevailing high prices of Bernhardt performances the motion picture presentation at Loew's South End should prove a great treat. Photographically "Queen Elizabeth" is perfect, and as a drama it is played as only Bernhardt could enact it. As this film will be exhibited only three days it is probable that considerable interest in the picture drama will be centered at this theatre.

St. James Theatre.

Again last evening the St. James Theatre was packed to the doors—as it was in the afternoon—to see a splendid bill of vaudeville and photo plays. On yesterday's bill was Felix Adler in songs and stories; "Disillusioned" with Herbert and Claribel Burgeon; the Heros, gymnasts; Roberts, Hays and Roberts, in the farce, "On the Road;" Kelso and Leighton, in a homosexual bit; Aubrey and Flower, comedians; and Marvello, violinist. Adler won tremendous applause with his act, and Marvello was a violinist who could play ragtime as well as classical music. It should be remembered that the program is changed at this theatre twice each week—on Mondays and Thursdays.

Premier Theatre

There was genuine interest in one new feature of the program at the Premier Theatre yesterday. This was brought forward in an industrial film showing the winning business as the hardy whalers follow it in the waters of the far north. But few purely industrial films produced have ever shown more dramatic or thrilling incident than the canoe and the harpooning of a monster whale. A half dozen other pictures and new songs were included in the bill.

Grand Opera House.

"The Rosebuds," with Helen Van Buren began a week's fun making at the Grand Opera House yesterday.

Scenic Temple.

New vaudeville and motion pictures made up the program at the Scenic Temple yesterday. Lenna Howe's orchestra was included in the bill.

Waldron's Casino.

Sam Howe's "Love Makers" arrived at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday with "Kisses," a two-act burlesque of the lively kind.

TALKING PICTURES IN BOSTON MONDAY

The new Thomas A. Edison talking motion picture will be publicly shown in Boston at B. F. Keith's Theatre next Monday afternoon for the first time.

Plays That Remain.

"Bunty Pulls the Strings" remains at the Majestic Theatre, where it is proving an ideal Lenten entertainment.

"The Red Petticoat" began its second week at the Shubert Theatre last evening.

"The Woman" entered upon a new week at the Park Theatre last evening.

"The Man Hunter" and "The Mind the Paint Girl" will remain at the Hollis through this week.

"Misleading" is now on its final week at the Tremont Theatre.

George Arliss and "Disraeli" began their final week at the Plymouth last evening.

"The Garden of Allah" continues popular at the Boston Theatre.

"Believe Me, Xantippe" is now on its fifth week at the Castle Square Theatre.

"Zigfeld's Follies" began the last week of the local engagement at the Colonial last evening.

Next Week's Bills.

Robert Loraine, in "Not For Sale," will be the attraction at the Plymouth next week.

"The Governor's Lady" is announced as next week's attraction at the Hollis.

"The Miracle," a European moving picture success, will come to the Colonial next Monday.

"The Yellow Jacket" will begin its Boston engagement at the Tremont next Monday.

Amusement Notes.

Rev. Charles F. Aked, D.D., one of the greatest pulpit orators of the day, will speak on "The Romance of the Golden West" at Tremont Temple on February 26.

An opportunity to hear details of "The War in the Balkans" will be given next Monday and Tuesday, when Angus Hamilton, F. R. G. S., will deliver his lecture at Tremont Temple. Mr. Hamilton served as a correspondent on the Turkish side for the Central News, London.

Andre de Fouquieres will give his talk on Parisian society and show his daringly beautiful natural color pictures of "The Parisian Ball" at a single subscription performance Tuesday evening, February 25, at Copley Hall.

CAVALIERI WOULD MAKE MAYOR FEAST

Mere honors are awaiting Mayor Fitzgerald, who is now speeding toward Palm Beach for his midwinter rest.

Lina Cavalieri, the grand opera star, wants to prepare a repast for His Honor. The song bird has requested Mayor Fitzgerald to personally escort her next Saturday to one of the city institutions where she can sing to the inmates. Her first violinist will accompany her. Then, after the concert, she wants the Mayor to return with her to the Copley-Plaza, where she will prepare one of her famous spaghetti dishes. The Mayor will be in the South a month and consequently cannot accept.

"THE JEWELS" REPEATED AT OPERA HOUSE

"The Jewels of the Madonna" was repeated at the Opera last night to the edification of the Monday night subscribers who had begun to fear they were not going to get it.

Vanni Marcoux, whose injury still keeps him from the boards, was replaced by Polese. Edvina journeyed down from Ottawa especially for the performance and Zenatello, Gay and the other members of the original cast were present.

"The Jewels" is one of those operas which makes a splendid impression at a first hearing and gradually grows tame. It depends upon its drama, its stage surprises, more than the intrinsic worth of the music for its success, and when these are familiar and we can shut our eyes and listen to the score we do not admire it quite so extravagantly.

Nevertheless, it contains at least half a dozen downright good tunes, and these are likely to retain it in the repertory for some years.

Polese was rather a disappointment as the gay Commorist. He was arrayed like a barber on a holiday, and played the remarkable role in a conventional manner. He has a beautiful voice and yet sang the fury.

SWELL SUFFRAGE TREASURY BY PLAY AT HOLLIS STREET

The treasury of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association was greatly increased today by the proceeds from a four-act play, "Catherine," translated from the French of Henri Lavedan, given at the Hollis Street Theatre by amateurs in aid of the Association.

Members of the Toy Theatre players, of "The Amateurs," and of several other smaller amateur theatrical organizations composed the cast. Miss Henrietta M. Dankels, "loaned" for the occasion by John Craig of the Castle Square Theatre, was the only professional who took part.

SPANISH PLAY AT TOY THEATRE

A Spanish drama, "Maria Rosa," was presented at the Toy Theatre. It was an excellent play, well acted, and the amateurs deserved the warm greeting that they received.

first act sir very poorly. He was better in the serenade and by the last act was singing well. Nervousness perhaps explains him.

It is surprising to find such fire and dash in a tiny little person like Edvina, and her Mallela is worthy of great praise. Zenatello sang finely as usual, and the cast and chorus were all that could be desired.

The blazing brilliant Naples fete scene, and the gorgeous velvet night scene delighted the audience as it has the previous ones.

It is a pity that Mr. Urban can't seem to iron the creases out of his blue Italian sky.

Mr. Capier conducted with his usual earnestness and a fair imitation of Italian fury.

BROKER FINDS HIS WIFE FLED WITH CHAUFFEUR

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Finding that his wife was with the chauffeur who had gone away with his automobile, William B. Savage, a wealthy cotton broker, today cut about to secure a divorce. He then dropped the charge of theft he had preferred against the chauffeur.

Frank Conley, a brother of Mrs. Savage, saw Mr. Savage's touring car in front of the Hotel Rodicott. Inmich was on the front seat. Conley called to a patrolman and had the men arrested. Mrs. Savage then appeared and she accompanied them to the station. Conley pleaded for Mr. Savage.

While he was telling his story Mrs. Savage, smiling and apparently amused, came from the rear of the room, accompanied by Inmich. Catching sight of the chauffeur, Savage turned to him and started to speak. But no, for the first time now his wife and realised that they had gone away together. He fell back as if struck a blow. Then he said to Inmich:

"What do you mean by using my automobile?"

"I did not," replied Inmich.

"Yes, you did. I was good to you and you imposed on me."

"I didn't steal that automobile," Inmich said, his voice shaking. "I thought Mrs. Savage owned it. She pays me my salary and I thought the car was hers."

"You can never come to my house again," Savage cried to his wife. For reply Mrs. Savage smiled.

"Where have you been living?" Inmich was asked.

"At the Hotel Endicott, Mrs. Savage and I had a suite of two rooms there. We were registered as Mr. Griffin and wife. She had her room and I mine."

Savage suddenly bowed out: "Now I have grounds for divorce. I withdraw the charge against the chauffeur. I make no charge against any one."

The Savages have three children, ranging from four to twelve years.

$1,000 FIRE AT JAMAICA PLAIN; FOSS IS LOSER

For three quarters of an hour firemen, headed by District Chief Michael Mullen, lay flat on their stomachs fighting a fire which caused a damage of $1,000 to the plant of The Jamaica Plain News at No. 66 Seaverns avenue, Jamaica Plain, early today. The building, a two-story brick structure, is owned by Governor Foss and situated only a short distance from his home.

The blaze started in the cubbyhead, and the firemen, crawling on their hands and knees, were obliged to work in relays, as the smoke, which belched through the doors and cracks in the floor, spelled suffocation.

Billy Rolfe, the former pugilist and now a member of the crew of Ladder 10, stepped on a nail in the basement, which pierced the rubber boot on his left foot and inflicted an ugly wound in his heel. He was taken back to the quarters of the company, where the wound was treated.

The fire was discovered by Michael Tuck, a linotype operator, who was at work in the basement. An alarm was sounded and the firemen, finding they were unable to get into the cubbyhead, cut holes in the floor and managed to reach the flame. The Jamaica Plain News is owned by F. L. Hewins. The rest of the building is taken up by a dance hall and several lodge rooms, which were not damaged.

Boys Tell of Rescue from Ice Cake in Harbor

Sixteen-year-old Arthur J. Lemay and his brother Raymond, eight, of No. 554 East Eighth street, and fourteen-year-old Ernest Hoeft of No. 503 East Eighth street, told today of how they were rescued from a floating ice cake in Dorchester Bay. They vowed, too, they would go a-sailing no more on cakes of ice.

The youngsters had navigated more than six hundred yards of the rough waters of the bay before they were lifted off their craft into the rowboat of Louis George.

The boys had been playing on the ice of the bay and had amused themselves jumping over the cracks. They saw an unusually large crack in the ice and all jumped over it. Their combined weight and the sudden jarring made it break off, and, aided by the tide and the wind, it floated away.

The boys screamed to their companions, who ran for poles and ropes, but by the time they returned the three mariners had started on their cruise. A man in one of the buildings connected with the city stables saw the ice cake and its passengers go speeding by the end of the street. He telephoned to George at the Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club in the Lower Mills.

George jumped into a rowboat just as the boys were sailing by the Lower Mills houses, 200 yards out at sea. Pulling as hard as he could, George got in front of the cake of ice, so that as the tide carried it along it bumped into it.

$500,000 FIRE AT QUINCY, ILL.

QUINCY, Ill., Feb. 18.—A loss of $500,000 is estimated on the Dayton Tablet Works, which were destroyed by fire.

WOMAN, 2 MEN NEAR DEATH AS TUG HITS BOAT

The failure to carry lights as prescribed by law, was to blame for the collision between the tug boat Zetes and a power boat off Long Island Wharf, according to charges today. It was claimed the power boat carried no lights. Two men and a woman in the power boat nearly lost their lives. They were E. H. Croscup, his wife and brother, Colin J. Croscup. The men are Lynn harbor pilots.

According to the tug captain, he gave the customary signal. A few seconds later the tug struck the smaller boat, broke her over, and an instant later the three occupants were struggling in the icy water and drifting astern as the tug passed.

The crew assisted the three aboard, although it developed that the launch was not in a sinking condition.

The Zetes then headed back for Lewis Wharf with the damaged power boat towing astern.

The Croscup brothers have been pilots for many years and during the past two months have been living in Boston, going down the harbor 52 day, either seeking boats or in charge of craft entering Lynn harbor.

Patrolman Tells of Egg Batch in Making Arrests

If you are a friend of Patrolman Chisholm of the Roxbury Crossing Station, and if you value his friendship, don't say "omelet" to him today. There's a reason. The reason became apparent when Chisholm appeared in court today to press charges against Joseph McCann, who claims to be an expressman, but whom Chisholm says was transporting something beneath his bell that usually ranks as "pony express" goods.

'Twas this way. Patrolman Chisholm, clad in a nice new suit of blue and an immaculate white shirt, was treading his lofty beat when he came upon McCann. Now McCann was faltering under a heavy load or two, as Chisholm says. The load on his back slipped as Chisholm stepped up and asked what he was carrying. McCann said it was eggs. Then he produced a veritable volcano. When it ended Chisholm was on the sidewalk, the center of a nice egg omelet. For ten dozen, was eggs.

Chisholm thought it would be well for McCann to put up at the station house for a while, but McCann said he would prove he had bought these eggs. When he reached the place he said he bought them, he disappeared, Chisholm on chase. But the officer of the law triumphed and so McCann had to tell his tale in court again today.

PHELAN TAKES HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Congressman elect Phelan of Lynn has leased a house in Nineteenth street for the coming extra session of Congress.

2-BATTLESHIP VICTORY HANGS ON TWO VOTES

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

(Editorial Correspondence of the American.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The expected conference of the Naval Affairs Committee did not materialize. For some reason, Chairman Padgett failed to call it. Mr. Padgett, who is from Tennessee, bitterly opposes the two-battleship program. From which it would appear that Mr. Padgett has no chance to bring the majority of the committee to vote for a change in the committee report from a favorable to an unfavorable report.

The margin is narrow. Twenty-one members of the committee, nine of whom are Democrats, voted to change the vote for the two battleships into a vote against two battleships or to divide the report into one for two battleships and one for a program of naval equipment. Twelve members, seven Republicans and five Democrats, voted for the straight two-battleship bill, which is ready to be presented as the report of the committee.

The division of the report would be just as deadly to two battleships as the change of the favorable report to an unfavorable report.

SERVIA SENDS SIEGE GUNS TO BULGARIANS BEFORE ADRIANOPLE

BELGRADE, Feb. 18.—A special train carrying thirty heavy bore cannon left here today for Adrianople. Premier Pashitch said that more Servian troops would be sent to reinforce the Bulgarians besieging the city.

"We feel certain that Adrianople cannot hold out much longer," said the Servian Premier. "The food and ammunition supplies of the Turks are at their lowest ebb. Many have started to desert. The Servian government is sending 5,000 soldiers together with three thirty-ton calibre siege guns. The cannons are now and ought to do tremendous damage as they carry nearly ten miles."

Medicated Gin Splendid for Kidneys and Bladder

When good pure gin is properly mixed with certain other ingredients and taken in small doses, it makes a splendid remedy for the kidneys and bladder, as well as for stomach disorder. Simply get six ounces best gin and add to it one-half ounce Marex Compound and one ounce Fluid Extract of Buchu. Mix well and take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. This quickly stops kidney or bladder misery and relieves even the most serious forms of kidney disease, such as Bright's disease, diabetes, inflammation or dread diabetes.

Any or all the ingredients for the above prescription can be had at any good druggist's. For best results be sure to get the genuine Marex Compound, which comes only in sealed packages from the Marex Chemical Co., Buffalo. Treatment should not take more than a few days. Advertisement

WILSON FAMILY REUNION TO BE MARCH 4 EVENT

PRINCETON, N. Y., Feb. 18.—The inauguration of President-elect Wilson on March 4 will have a sentimental significance if present plans are carried out. Arrangements are being made for both a family reunion in Washington upon the occasion of the inauguration, which will be the first ever held embracing the family in all its branches. Brothers, sisters, wives, husbands, cousins, nephews, nieces, aunts and uncles all will be there to join in the celebration.

Mrs. Wilson announced the plans today.

All of the party will actually be with Mrs. Wilson as members of the immediate family party on Inauguration day. They will accompany the President-elect's wife in automobiles when she goes ahead and sit with her in the grandstand while the inaugural parade is being reviewed.

The entire party will stop with Mrs. Wilson at the Shoreham Hotel.

Invitations are being sent out now by Mrs. Wilson to members of the family and hearty responses are coming in. Arrangements for the party have been made by Colonel Thomas H. Birch of Burlington, N. J., who was recently appointed personal aide to the President-elect. Incidentally, Colonel Birch was today informed that he is to continue in office by State Senator Fielder, who will succeed Wilson as Governor of New Jersey.

WOMEN CAN HAVE WELL-ROUNDED, PLUMP FIGURES

Simple Treatment That Rouses Delicate Tissues and Rounds Out the Form

"Nature intended woman to have a beautiful figure," writes Mme. Marcee in Home Helps, "and where scrawniness exists it is because of starved tissues. Correct this and a plump, well-rounded form results.

"For this purpose gallol is truly wonderful, and as the cost is trifling, any woman can prepare her own treatment in utmost privacy by dissolving one and one-half cupfuls of sugar in a pint of water, then stirring in one ounce gallol. Two teaspoonfuls should be taken before meals. This soon gives the form the voluptuous lines it should have."—Advertisement.

Miss Roosevelt and Dr. Derby, Expert Whips

It was the most natural thing in the world for Miss Ethel Carow Roosevelt and Dr. Richard Derby to fall in love, because they are both in love with a good horse and ardently devoted to outdoor sports and exercises. So Miss Roosevelt, a superb horsewoman, figuratively rode into the doctor's heart, and it was no a fine cavalier that he won here, most probably.

Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt have announced the engagement of their second daughter to Dr. Derby, a son of the late Dr. Richard H. Derby of this city. But the intimate friends of the young pair needed no gift of prophecy to foretell months ago that Dr. Derby would ask, "Will you ride side by side with me through life?" and that Miss Roosevelt would answer, dissolvingly, "Yes."

Besides being an admirable horseman Dr. Derby is a Harvard man, was graduated in '03, and that gave him an advantage in the running. Certainly it did no harm that Dr. Derby could add a Harvard degree to his many virtues and accomplishments when he came to "ask papa."

In a word, the romance of Miss Roosevelt and Dr. Derby has been a romance of the saddle.

Dr. Derby is no mollycoddle. He was president of his class one year and was graduated with honors. He rowed in the Varsity boat and played halfback on the eleven during his career at Harvard.

PHILHARMONIC LOSES PULITZER MILLION DOLLAR BEQUEST

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Philharmonic Society, according to the decision of Surrogate Cohn, has not met the requirements of the will of Joseph Pulitzer, and its right to the million dollars bequeathed under certain conditions by Pulitzer is denied.

The conditions of the will were that the society must become a membership corporation under the laws of New York, with a membership of not less than 1,000 paying ones, and that the society must receive the approval of the executors of the will.

The Surrogate has now decided that the society has not fulfilled these conditions, and consequently, is not entitled to the money.

DOG'S BITE KILLS MEDICAL EXAMINER

PORTSMOUTH, R. I., Feb. 18.—Blood poisoning, resulting from the bite of a dog, caused the death of Dr. Minot Steele, medical examiner. Dr. Steele was visiting a patient when a dog bit him in the ankle.

MOURN LOSS OF JOAQUIN MILLER, SIERRAS' POET

Lovers of Nature in Boston and everywhere the English language is read, learned today with keen regret of the death of Joaquin Miller, known the country over as the "Poet of the Sierras." He died in his picturesque cabin in the Piedmont foothills, near San Francisco. He had been unconscious four days.

His daughter, Juanita, and wife, were at his bedside when death came. Almost seventy, his health had been failing two years, however, said that he was born November 10, 1841, in the Wabash district of Indiana. When he was nine or ten, his family set out for Oregon in oldtime prairie fashion.

In Oregon young Miller worked as a cook's helper and miner and then studied law, becoming later a district judge. While holding the latter position he wrote verse under the name of Cincinnatus Hiner Miller. In some biographies, his middle name is given as Heine.

Many of his poems became famous, among them "Columbus," which follows:

COLUMBUS.

Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind the gates of Hercules,
Before him not the ghost of shores,
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said: "Now must we pray,
For lo! the very stars are gone.
Brave admiral, speak; what shall I say?"
"Why, say, 'sail on! sail on! and on!'"

"My men grow mutinous day by day;
My men grow ghastly wan and weak."
The stout mate thought of home; a spray
Of salt wave washed his saltry cheek.
"What shall I say, brave admiral, say,
If we sail onward to our doom?"
"Say, 'sail on! sail on! and on!'"

They sailed. They sailed. Then spake the mate:
"This mad sea shows his teeth tonight.
He curls his lip, he lies in wait,
With lifted teeth, as if to bite!
Brave admiral say but one good word:
What shall we do when hope is gone?"
The words leapt like a leaping sword:
"Sail on! sail on! sail on! and on!"

Then, pale and worn, he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness. Ah, that Night
Of all nights! Still the onward beck
And call of "Sail on!" urged them on.
A light! A light! A light! It grew,
A starlit flag unfurled!
It grew to be Time's burst of dawn.
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: "On, sail on!"

Wee School Girl Lost in Blue Hills Found by Father

When little five-year-old Anita Sumner of Victoria street, Milton, started for school today she promised her mother that she would go straight home after school and not play about the streets.

"I got lost yesterday, mamma, but I'm never going to do it again," she said.

Late last night Anita was found wandering about the Blue Hill section. Miss Annie Hickey turned the child over to the police of the Hyde Park station, who in turn sent her to the Charles street home. Her father took her home at midnight.

ECKERT FIGHTS FOR $3,000,000 ESTATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The fight for the possession of the $3,000,000 Eckert estate is begun in the Supreme Court by James C. Eckert, who was cut off with a nominal sum in the will of his father, General Thomas T. Eckert. The defendant is a younger brother, Thomas E. Eckert, Jr. General Eckert was president of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

MEET DAILY TO DISCUSS SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR

Every day now until February 25 the Boston Chamber of Commerce Committee, which has in charge the tour of South America, will meet at the Boston City Club at one o'clock to report progress.

The committee has already received enough signatures to make it certain that there will be a large and finely representative delegation, but it is absolutely necessary to make it fifty in order to receive the special rates and advantages which are offered by the steamship lines.

The firm of Charles V. Dewey, steamship agents, who are booking the party, have arranged to divert great steamships from their course, to hold them in port several days over time, and to include ports of call in South America not usually made, but all the arrangements depend upon the delegation being fifty strong.

Most important of all is the bringing of a chartered steamer to Boston to carry the delegation to Panama, the first leg of the trip.

The Chamber of Commerce desires to give the delegation a great send off. A parade through the streets to the dock with brass bands, speeches and other features is being considered.

The tour committee has therefore entered upon a campaign to get fifty signatures. Important men are being called upon, and arguments offered as to why they should make the trip.

Mayor Fitzgerald Traveling with John D. Rockefeller

Mayor Fitzgerald and John D. Rockefeller are traveling "pals" today on the Florida special, which is taking "John F." to Palm Beach and "John D." to Jekyl Island, Ga. Before he started the Mayor said he was taking a vacation to get out of the newspaper headlines. And here he is, rubbing elbows with the richest of them all.

Rockefeller got on in New York. So did Mayor John F. It may have been prearranged, and it may not have been.

WOMEN TO LEARN STUMP-SPEAKING

TREAT 11 PUPILS IN BOSTON SCHOOLS FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Eleven pupils are being treated in the Boston schools for suspected tuberculosis, according to the report of Dr. Thomas F. Harrington, director of school hygiene, to the Boston School Committee. The committee by a vote rescinded the recent order by which it lengthened the school year by extending the season one week later into June and beginning it one week earlier in September. Parents of the pupils protested against the order.

In the place of the two extra weeks that it was first intended to add to the school term, the School Committee hopes to establish Summer elementary schools after the plan of the existing Summer high schools.

Who Has That $500,000?

On January 17, 1913, the Massachusetts Employees Insurance Association voted to declare special dividends of from 30% to 41.7%, payable to its general subscribers as of December 31, 1912.

On Saturday, February 15, 1913, one month later, 18 stock companies doing workmen's compensation insurance business in this state, announced a flat reduction in rates of 25%, effective from February 15. Mind you, this reduction does not apply to the seven and one-half months just past.

Listen, you Merchants and Manufacturers of Massachusetts!

QUESTION—If the Massachusetts Employees Insurance Association were not doing business, and had not voted to pay substantial dividends, do you believe that the stock companies would have reduced their rates to the new level?

ANSWER—Compare the present high rates of the same companies for the same industries in New Jersey, Illinois and Ohio, where no company similar to the Massachusetts Employees Insurance Association was created by the State for the purpose of keeping down insurance rates.

QUESTION—Who is better off today, the merchants and manufacturers who insured with the 18 stock companies or those who insured with us?

ANSWER—Those who insured with us have from the start been promised insurance at cost. In following out this promise we have declared dividends which will reduce their rates to from 30% to 41.7% below the rates they would have paid to stock companies, and, most important, this dividend reduces the cost of their insurance from the first day of last July.

The merchants and manufacturers who insured with the stock companies get back no part of the amount which they have been overcharged between July 1st and February 1st, according to the stock companies' own confession.

The Association made no error—its rates were made advisedly with a margin for substantial dividends.

QUESTION—How much have the merchants and manufacturers of Massachusetts lost and how much have "the eighteen" gained by this transaction?

ANSWER—About $500,000 on the basis of the stock companies' own published figures of $750,000 a year saving under their new rates.

QUESTION—Why did the stock companies make this enormous overcharge?

ANSWER—One of the largest stock companies has written broadcast to the employers of Massachusetts a statement that the rates it has charged for seven and one-half months were based "on an element of error" and that it desires to "admit that error and assume its full measure of responsibility therefor." Will this admission of error suffice to satisfy the merchants and manufacturers who have insured with it since July 1st and have contributed to the $500,000 overcharge?

You will shortly be asked to readjust your insurance with the stock companies on the new rates. Don't do it. How do you know that as applied to your industry the guess they are now making is not too high?

The Massachusetts Employees Insurance Association is now completing a readjusted rate schedule on a fair basis, not by an arbitrary, slap-dash, unscientific method.

Apply for the Association's new rates which will make a reduction of 30% from the old stock company rates for at least 75% of the employers of labor of Massachusetts.

CASSIDY'S PURE LIQUOR BILL TO COME UP FOR HEARING TOMORROW

Mr. Cassidy today calls attention to a hearing to be given tomorrow on one of his pure food bills—the first hearing on any of the bills he introduced. The hearing will be before the Committee on Liquor Laws, at 10:30 o'clock.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The Committee on Liquor Laws will tomorrow give a hearing upon a bill, House Bill No. 1,096, introduced bearing my name, and which is designed to protect the public from adulterated liquors.

The adulteration of liquor today is widespread. It does not affect so wide a circle of consumers, as other food frauds, perhaps. But pure liquor is just as important as pure food, in many ways. When you go to the corner drug store for a bottle of whiskey, to be used as medicine for your sick child, you do not want a bottle of cologne spirits, colored with caramel. You want pure whiskey, for that is what the doctor has prescribed.

The present law, Chapter 212, Section 1, reads as follows:

"Whoever, for the purpose of sale, adulterates any liquor used or intended for drink with India cocle, vitriol, grains of paradise, opium, alum, cochineal, capsicum, copperas, laurel water, logwood, Brazil wood, sugar of lead or any other substance which is poisonous or injurious to health, and whoever knowingly sells any such liquor so adulterated, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than three years; and the articles so adulterated shall be forfeited."

Block Up the Loophole.

The law I propose is designed to cut out the word "knowingly"—and so to put the responsibility for selling pure liquor squarely up to the retailers, where it belongs.

This question of whether or not the word "knowingly" has any place in the penalty clause of a pure food law, is one of the big problems before the present legislature. I believe the best way to arrive at a level headed point of view in the matter is to consider this situation.

When a customer enters a store today and buys a pint of whiskey, or a pound of meat, or a bushel of apples; and when he has paid the retailer—the retailer's responsibility ends. And his risk is also ended.

That is—if you get home and find the retailer has sold you rotten goods, and you go back to him and say: "Here, this meat is rotten. I want my money back."

Then he can say to you: "Why, I didn't know it was rotten."

And unless you can PROVE that the retailer DID KNOW it was rotten you cannot punish him for selling you that rotten meat.

Perhaps you feel you personally are as well able to judge meat as the retailer. But how about the times when your six-year-old daughter is sent to the store for meat. She can't tell whether the retailer is cheating her or not. And if she brings home rotten meat, and you threaten the retailer with persecution, he can say: "I didn't know"—and go scot-free.

Nullifies the Law.

The word "knowingly" absolutely nullifies the liquor law, and every pure food law in which it appears. It is practically impossible to enforce the law against the morally drained unless the word be stricken out of the statutes.

To make such of you realize just what the effect of this word's presence in the law is, imagine, if you can, that you were a dishonest retail dealer. Do you, or do you not, believe you could so manage it that you would never know if rotten food was being sold in your store? Imagine, for instance, this scene:

Boss retailer enters the store. His chief butcher approaches him.

"Say, boss," says the butcher, "some of this stuff back here is turning bad."

"Sh-h-h!" says the boss. "Don't tell me what stuff it is. Sell it for know anything about it."

Such instances can be multiplied indefinitely. It should be obvious that the word "knowingly, in a law ABSOLUTELY PROTECTS the dishonest retailer from persecution if he cares to take advantage of it.

Ask for the question of adulteration of liquors—I could go on for hours enumerating cases and telling methods of the whiskey adulterators. I could tell how this wine is made of diluted acid and alcohol; and how that other cordial is made of essence, water and alcohol, and of a thousand other devices of the dishonest liquor manufacturer.

Bought in Boston.

I bought in Boston, for instance, a little bottle marked "Strawberry cordial." The directions read: "To make one quart of cordial, dissolve this flavor in ten ounces of pure alcohol, twelve ounces granulated sugar and sufficient water to make one quart."

Another bottle bought at the same place teach bottle held about an ounce) contained absinthe extract. To this flavor you added a pint of water and a pint of alcohol.

Whiskey, properly so-called, is a liquor which after its manufacture is aged for three or four years in casks or barrels, the inside of which has been charred. In this aging process, there is a heavy loss from evaporation, and the whiskey acquires a mellow flavor.

To cut off this loss by evaporation, the manufacturers began to use copper lined casks. The whisey was aged two or three years and there was no loss from evaporation.

Then came the demand for a shorter method of making whiskey, and today there are great quantities of whiskey on the market which were made in a day instead of four years. Cologne spirits were used as a base, and the mixture was colored with caramel or a similar flavoring.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Mixed with Sulphur Makes Hair Soft and Luxuriant and Removes Dandruff.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, say a well-known downtown druggist. It was our grandmothers' treatment and hundreds of women and men, too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this twice daily and by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides prevents dandruff; itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray-haired folks, get busy; look years younger.

By These Rules You May Live to Be 100 Years Young

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Would you live to be a hundred years old? Follow the advice of Dr. Josiah Oldfield, who is nearly ninety and "feels entirely young," says the doctor.

If a man lives properly he can carry the spirit of youth to the end of his days. Here is the secret of long life:

Think big thoughts; cling to noble ideals; do not waste time over petty things; do not take narrow views; eat fruit, vegetables, oils, eggs, butter, milk and bread; drink only pure wines; baths every morning; rub your skin with a towel; change your underclothing every twenty-four hours; know yourself.

SET $450,000 FOR BOSTON CUSTOM HOUSE CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Four hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the completion of improvements on the Boston Custom House, in the sundry civil bill just reported to the House. The measure carries $96,000 "for expenses incident to the temporary removal of the force employed in the Custom House." This completes the authorized appropriation of $1,550,000.

The bill also provides $150,000 for continuing the thirty-five-foot channel improvement project for Boston harbor.

The $25,000,000 public buildings bill, passed by the House by 184 to 46, and declared by Representative Hardwick "the worst bill of its kind ever reported to an American House of Representatives," and "a rotten proposition," aroused much discussion today. The opponents of the measure were unable to muster enough votes to secure a rollcall.

HENRY S. MERRILL DEAD.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Henry S. Merrill of Chelsea, Mass., for the last twenty years assistant chief of the United States revenue cutter service, is dead here.

Waltham Draws Line on Women City Officials

No women officials in Waltham, is the edict of the Board of Aldermen. The board today formally notified Mayor Patrick Duane that it had turned down his appointments of Miss Ida Anna Ryan as superintendent of public buildings and inspector of buildings, and Miss Vera Ryan as a member of the Board of Assessors.

Miss Ida Ryan was rejected by a vote of 17 to 2, and Miss Vera Ryan by a vote of 15 to 4. No argument was advanced in behalf of the appointments.

Miss Ryan is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has two degrees and has studied abroad. She has been superintendent of buildings and inspector since the retirement of Samuel Patch, who held the offices. Miss Vera Ryan was for eighteen years clerk in the office of the Board of Assessors, and is also a member of the bar.

B. & A. STATION AGENTS DEMAND WAGE INCREASE

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 18.—A demand for higher wages will be made on the Boston & Albany Railroad this week by the Order of Railway Station Agents. The members believe the increases being given employes in various departments should be extended to them.

The road officials claim a seven per cent. increase was granted the agents and ticket sellers less than two years ago, and as their duties and responsibilities have not increased since, they see no reason why they should grant the demand.

GLAD TIME FOR A FEW

LACE CURTAIN BUYERS

No time for long stories: you wouldn't read them. We bought too many of some Lace Curtains, or you bought too few. Whichever way it may be here's an unsold balance reduced to close. We buy to sell, not to keep.

SCRIM AND MARQUISETTE

These Curtains are mounted on excellent materials and every one of them serviceable because well made. Many are enhanced with drawnwork; others trimmed with insertings and edgings.

Were $3.00 to $5.00; Now $1.95 to $3.45

REAL LINEN CLUNY CURTAINS

WHITE AND ECRU

They are firmly mounted on substantial cable net with gimp back edge. You may buy them with confidence—they will never betray it.

Values $2.50 to $5.00; Price $1.95 to $3.45

FRENCH LACET ARABIAN CURTAINS

Many handsome designs mounted on heavy cable net with gimp edges—some trimmed with insertings, others with edgings. Just 142 pairs that you have overlooked. Look at the price tags now.

Values $6.50 to $25.00; Choice $5.00 to $18.50

Have you lately seen the SHEPARD UPHOLSTERY STORE? Whether you have or not it will please you to look at it now. Every day is producing some change for the better there, although you'd hardly think it possible. We believe it is the most complete in Boston. The Spring importation of Drapery Fabrics and Curtains is arriving almost daily.

ROSES

To the eye nature equalled in these artificial Roses—big ones singly or little ones in clusters flanked with foliage. You try to smell them and are undeceived. Marvels of imitative skill..... 25c

FORMER CHAMPION ANXIOUS TO K. O. MURPHY

WOLGAST SURE OF COAST VICTORY

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

W. W. NAUGHTON

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Ad Wolgast in the business little here in this neighborhood. He arrived from Portland, Sunday, visited Promoter Coffroth's office, shook hands with countless friends and admirers, agreed to the selection of Jim Griffin as referee of the Wolgast-Murphy contest on Washington's birthday, visited his training quarters at Seal Rock House and, last but not least, resumed business relations with Tom Jones, who has been his friend, philosopher and manager for several years.

The reunion of Wolgast and Jones took place at Coffroth's headquarters and Coffroth was the Judge Graham of the occasion.

AD IN PERFECT CONDITION.

"I am going to be very fit for the Murphy fight," said Ad. "No one need worry on account of poor conditions. I have put the past behind me. I believe my best days are to come. I believe I am better

"I fought seven times a few weeks ago, in addition to boxing exhibitions. I am getting down to fighting weight now. My hands are sore and swollen, but I have had a good rest.

"Instead of going at fighting weight, I am going at 128 pounds and I feel fit. I am the good part of the light weight now. That means that I am strong.

"The real proof of Wolgast's return of confidence is my decision to box with Murphy on the first of the month. Certain things I am doing are convincing me that I am all right."

Tells of Bouts in East

When asked if Wolgast had ever been in a hard fight, Jones answered and said:

"It depends upon what you call a hard fight. Ad has had many battles, but I don't know whether any of them were hard fights. Ad has had many battles from the start and has never been stopped or outpointed.

The Mystery of Mary

A Thrilling Story of a Strange Disappearance and of Love Triumphant

SYNOPSIS.

Tyrus Dunham, a young attorney of Pittsburgh, arrives in his home town from a short trip, on a delayed train, and is taking a short cut from the station to reach his home quickly, so that he can dress and fill a dinner engagement. As he hurries along over the tracks a girlish voice asks him not to look around, but requests that the owner of it be allowed to walk along with him. "I am very much frightened and I'm afraid I shall be followed," says the voice. "Will you tell me where I can go to hide?"

Dunham and his companion gain the street. He sees that she is a young girl, pretty and attractive, but without hat or coat. He puts her in a cab and orders the driver to go to his own home. The girl attracts him very much, and he places himself at her service. She will not tell him her story, but is willing to accept his help. They reach his home and he goes in to dress. He begs his hostess, over the phone, to excuse him from the engagement as he is entertaining a friend, who has just stepped over between trains. His hostess, Mrs. Bowman, insists he bring his friend along, and this he promises to do after giving her name as Mary Remington—not having learned her real name from the girl.

Dunham dresses, and, gathering up a hat and gloves that belong to his sister and a coat of his mother's, goes to the girl in the cab. He orders the driver to go to Mrs. Bowman's and, during the ride there persuades the girl to accept the invitation.

Judge Blanchard, one of the guests, tells of a girl who resembled "Mary," who came to him for help that day—and who disappeared from his office, leaving her hat and coat. "Mary" proves to be a talented musician and charms the guests with her playing.

By GRACE LIVINGSTON HILL LUTZ

Copyright, 1912, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

WITH a look of relief, yet keeping up her part of dismay over the lateness of the hour, the girl sprang to her feet and hurried away to get her wraps, in spite of her protesting hostess.

Mrs. Bowman was held at bay with sweet expressions of gratitude for the pleasant entertainment. The great black picture hat was settled becomingly on the small head, the black cloak thrown over her gown, and the gloves fitted on hurriedly to hide the fact that they were too large.

"And whom did you say you studied with?" asked the keen hostess, determined to be able to tell how great a guest she had harbored for the evening.

"Oh, is Mr. Dunham calling me, Mrs. Bowman? You will excuse me for hurrying off, won't you? And it has been so lovely of you to ask me—perfectly delightful to find friends this way when I was a stranger."

She hurried toward the stairway and down the broad steps, and the hostess had no choice but to follow her.

The other guests crowded out into the hall to bid them goodby and to tell the girl how much they had enjoyed the music.

Mrs. Blanchard inclined upon kissing the smooth cheek of the young musician, and whispered in her ear: "You play very nicely, my dear. I should like to hear you again some time."

The kindness in her tone almost brought a rush of tears to the eyes of the weary, anxious girl.

* * *

DUNHAM hurried her off amid the goodbys of the company, and in a moment more they were shut into the semi-darkness of the four-wheeler and whirled from the too hospitable door.

As soon as the door was shut the girl began to tremble.

"Oh, we ought not to have done that!" she exclaimed, with a shiver of recollection. "They were so very kind. It was dreadful to impose upon them. But—you were not to blame. It was my fault. It was very kind of you."

"We did not impose upon them!" he exclaimed peremptorily. "You are my friend, and that was all that we claimed. For Your wonderful music! How I wish I might hear more of it some time!"

Making Plans

The carriage paused to let a trolley pass, and a strong arc-light beat in upon the two.

A passing stranger peered curiously at them, and the girl shrank back in fear. It was momentary, but the minds of the two were brought back to the immediate necessities of the occasion.

"Now, what may I do for you?" asked Dunham in a quiet, businesslike tone, as if it were his privilege and right to do all that was to be done. "Have you thought where you would like to go?"

"I have not been able to do much thinking. It required all my wits to act not be any further trouble to you. You have done more already than any one could expect.

"If you can have the carriage stop in some quiet, out-of-the-way street where I shall not be noticed, I will get out and relieve you. If I hadn't been so frightened at first I should have had more sense than to burden you in this way. I hope some day I shall be able to repay your kindness, though I fear it is too great ever to repay."

"Please don't talk in that way," said he protestingly. "It has been a pleasure to do the little that I have done, and you have more than repaid it by the delight you have given me and my friends.

"It could not think of leaving you until you are out of your trouble, and if you will only give me a little hint of how to help, I will do my utmost for you. Are you quite sure you were followed? Don't you think you could trust enough to tell me a little more about the matter?"

She shuddered visibly.

"Forgive me," he murmured. "I see it distresses you.

"Of course it is unpleasant to confide in an utter stranger. I will not ask you to tell me. I will try to think for you.

"Suppose we go to the station and get you a ticket to somewhere. Have you any preference? You can trust me not to tell any one where you have gone, can you not?" There was a kind rebuke in his tone, and her eyes, as she lifted them to his face, were full of tears.

"I Have No Money"

"Oh, I do trust you!" she cried, distressed. "You must not think that, but—you do not understand."

Stock Prices; Financial News

The agreement of roads and firemen to arbitrate differences under the Erdman act was an uplifting influence in stock markets, in New York the response to the news was quick. In Boston the tone improved, but there was little activity.

Irregularity was the feature of opening prices in the local market. Early losses were fractional. By the end of the first hour there had been an improvement, and Butte & Superior, Calumet & Arizona, Franklin and North Butte were higher. Lake and Granby were then in the recession list.

The New York sub-treasury gained $2,166,000 from banks yesterday and has gained $2,281,000 since Saturday.

The copper metal market does not appeared settled. It is said that Calumet & Hecla has been selling its own brand of Lake copper at 15¾ cents and is now offering subsidiary brands at 15 cents. Other sales of Lake have been made at 15 cents a pound. The demand, according to a producer, has been chiefly for March.

The report that railroads and their firemen had come to an understanding which would prevent a strike was spread in New York just before the stock market opened and it had the immediate effect of advancing prices. Brisk buying of railroad issues and a number of industrial stocks followed in generally advance. There was also a firmer tone to copper shares. At the end of the first hour Canadian Pacific was up 2, Union Pacific 1, Reading 1, Northern Pacific ½, Steel ¼ and Amalgamating ¼.

At the opening Canadian Pacific was again the leader. It advanced 1¼ over Monday's final quotation. Steel was strong and rose a point. Buying of this stock was attributed by admirers that Edmund Morgan is in good health. Gains were made in almost all issues. At the end of half an hour some profit-taking developed, and fractional recessions happened to some of the stocks.

Among the earliest advances were Amalgamated 1¼, Anaconda ¼, Lehigh Valley 1¼, High Valley 1, Reading ⅝, Union Pacific ⅝, United States Rubber 1, Woolworth ¼ and American Smelting ¼. Southern Pacific sold off ⅛, and there were fractional recessions in St. Paul and in New York, New Haven & Hartford.

The Curb was steady.

Advances in copper were improved, especially Steel. There was a sharp advance there in Canadian Pacific on buying for quick prospects.

Copper Fell Further in London.

The decline in copper metal was still in progress when the London market opened. Standard copper opened, the loss for spot and futures being 6s. each. But the tone soon became firmer. Early business there was reported quiet and the report that the American Smelting and Refining Interests were offering electrolytic at 14¾ cents a pound for any delivery.

This does not support the report that there has been heavy buying of the metal by consumers since the price was reduced to 15 cents. The increase in Rotterdam and Hamburg supplies reported yesterday did not strengthen the price situation in Europe. The increase in London in those cities was explained as being the result of large shipments some time ago by some of the biggest American producers. They expected copper which was unsold.

Mr. Morgan's Health.

Wall Street is used to hearing reports that J. Pierpont Morgan is dangerously ill and it is a tribute to this financier's importance that the slightest rumor of that kind is sufficient to perturb the stock market. This morning fears that his health were at the vanishing point, but expired as soon as started. Of course there were many inquiries at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. for information about the head of the house.

It was stated there, in reply to such inquiries, that no definite word had been received from his party regarding his health and none were expected. It was said that the electrocardiograms did not require the sending of any.

More Gold for Export.

As was predicted last week more gold was been engaged for shipment to South America on Saturday next. Today the Anglo-South American Bank engaged $250,000. Last week $1,250,000 was taken for exportation by the Hanover National Bank, the latter amount also being intended for shipment on the last day of the week.

Wall street expects that the present total of $500,000 for Saturday shipment will be increased considerably by further engagements. The movement of gold from this country to Europe and South America so far this year totals more than $23,000,000. The total of the 1912 movement was about $60,000,000. The present outflow may equal the latter figure.

Financial News in Brief.

President Rea of the Pennsylvania road says: "The Pennsylvania Railroad Company Railroad financing for 1913 has not received the consideration of the board of directors, and probably will not for some weeks to come."

The 7½ points decline in B. F. Goodrich common was attributed to a strike by the rubber company's employees at Akron, O. This issue declined more yesterday than anything on the New York list.

Stock subscriptions in 1913 by United States Steel Corporation employes are understood to be smaller than those in the year ago. In 1912 the price fixed was $110 per share for the preferred and $38 and $40 for the common. Under the plan for this year the employes were given the privilege of subscribing for the preferred at $100 and the common at $36.

About April 5 the $128,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock which the Union Pacific must dispose of will begin to come upon the market. According to the custom in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. managed can offer their stock fifteen days after the expiration of the time in which stockholders may take advantage of their rights to subscribe.

The Interstate Commerce Commission reports that for November last the operating revenues of railroads aggregated $209,417,000, an increase of $20,234,000 over the eleventh month of 1911. Operating expenses were $170,000,000, an increase of $18,482,000, leaving net income after taxes of $80,450,000, an increase of $11,702,000.

Thompson, Towle & Co. say concerning Bethlehem Steel's business last year that the dividend balance for 1912 is reported to them to be equivalent to 6 per cent. on the common stock after allowing for seven per cent. dividends on the preferred; that depreciation charges were unusually heavy and that the balance sheet, as of December 31st will show that the company's financial position has been greatly strengthened. Directors meet for dividends around April 1.

WIDOWS TELL HOW PENSIONS WOULD HELP

Do your best for one another,
Life is but a pleasant dream.
Help the wearied, worn-out mother,
Struggling hard against life's stream.

By SYBIL WARNE.

The above verse was sent in by a contributor to the discussion of Mayor Fitzgerald's proposition to pension all widows with children. It is used by Rose A. McGuiri, who seeks aid for the St. Vincent de Paul Society in Fitchburg. In her typewrites, as told in her letter to the AMERICAN, she has yet found time to ask help for others. Her argument in favor of Mayor Fitzgerald's suggestion is filled with the strongest appeal. It and other letters follow. They are being received from all over New England. Mrs. McGuiri wrote:

Editor AMERICAN:

I hope God will bless Mayor Fitzgerald, or anyone who tries to have the poor widows pensioned. I have been a widow for the past nine years. I was left with five small children to care for, the last being born three months after his father died.

Yes, by all means, let the poor widows be pensioned. If we don't need a pension, I would like to know who does.

ROSE A. McGUIRI.

No. 13 Fourth St., Fitchburg.

Widow of 1898 Veteran.

Editor AMERICAN:

What about the widows' pension bill will bring. I know the hardships of widowhood. I am left with a family and in poor health. Ah, many times have I thought of the words of Scripture looking for work. I could find lots of work, enough to support myself, but there were little mouths to be fed and I must earn enough to keep the home together. God will bless Mayor Fitzgerald, even for the thought of the orphan and widows. No woman or man knows the struggle of the poor soul left with her little ones looking for bread and not knowing where to get it. My husband enlisted for the Spanish War and served two years. At the end of his time he was honorably discharged. He died soon after and left boys that often go to bed hungry. I wrote to the War Department to help me a little to raise the boys, but they refused. I wish we had a few more men like Mayor Fitzgerald.

F. T. L., Brockton.

Will Give Them Hope.

Editor AMERICAN:

In regard to pensions for widowed mothers, I wish to say that I thoroughly agree with Mayor Fitzgerald and with the statement made by Mrs. Kelley, in her letter to the AMERICAN of Feb. 13. If some people had to go through what the mothers have to, even in supporting one child, and could realize the sacrifices the mothers have to make, they would never hesitate in agreeing to seek a pension for them.

It is not in taking them out to the country and giving them work that would take them away from their troubles that I, they have any hope, but in giving them something to depend on; something to look forward to that will give them hope, and keep their courage up when they meet with the discouragements and drawbacks of every description which will surely come to their way. That is what their need and what more than anything else in making a living for themselves and their children.

A WIDOWED MOTHER.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO LEARN HOW TO SOUND FIRE CALL

Boston school children are to be taught the proper way in which to sound an alarm of fire and the location of the nearest box. It is planned to give fifteen minutes' instruction each week in the schools, in an effort to cut down the fire loss.

The following official rules governing ringing in an alarm will be the basis from which the instructors will work:

HOW TO SEND IN AN ALARM FOR FIRE.

In case of fire go to the box and open the door. Opening the door rings the bell on the door but does not give the alarm. Inside you will find a hook. Pull this hook all the way down once and let go. After giving the alarm remain at the box to direct the firemen to the fire.

HOTEL SUING SIRK'S WIFE; HE CAN'T BE FOUND

Mrs. Marie Sirk, said to be the wife of Saimon Sirk of Boston, is the defendant in a suit for $14,206.07, brought in New York by the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Company, for board and rooms prior to Thursday last, when the writs were served with summons at the home of Mrs. John T. Galloway, No. 106 West Eightieth street. Mr. and Mrs. Sirk were married at the Waldorf on May 5, 1912, according to report.

Much mystery surrounded the ceremony because of the fact that the engagement announcement of the previous day mentioned Mr. Sirk as "Count Saimon Sirk," and the announcement of the marriage caused considerable comment, there being two other women of wide acquaintance in New York whose names were the same as that of the bride, with the exception of the middle initial.

Saimon Sirk was for more than a dozen years a cafe estate operator in Boston. He is said to have finally given up his business in this city. His brother, Ismel Sirk of Roxbury, said today:

He married Miss Marie L. Kobbe, a Cape Cod girl, a woman, reputed to be wealthy. Whether Mr. Sirk is in New York now, his brother said he did not know, adding that he had been searching for him in vain a week without success.

Mr. Sirk was part owner of the Norfolk House in Roxbury, and considerable property in the South End in recent years, and until a short time ago was one of the owners of the Deacon Hall property.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

There will probably be a separate automobile building at the Panama-Pacific exhibition at San Francisco in 1915. The authorities in charge of the exhibition first made an offer of 40,000 square feet of space in the Transportation building, to take care of passenger and commercial vehicles, accessories and motorcycles. This amount would be inadequate.

The alternative is a building containing about 250,000 square feet of exhibition space, which is likely to cost the trade from $2 to $2.50 a square foot. The exhibition management has been making efforts to get individual manufacturers to go in, but the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers urges that for the present no independent action be taken by any maker.

Officials of the Chandler Motor Car Company, in making public their plan of organization several weeks ago, stated that in addition to the men who formed the executive of this company of experienced builders were men of prominence in the industry who would add further strength to the company and whose names would be given out later. The latest development is the announcement that C. A. Carey is to take charge of the department of supplies and purchases.

"The future of the automobile industry lies with the dealer, "said H. S. Quinn, advertising manager of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, O., at a recent convention of automobile dealers gathered in Chicago. "Without the dealer's desire to sell satisfaction, to give service and save the consumer money the industry will suffer. And service consists in having what the motorist wants, where he wants it and when he wants it.

"For that reason the garage owner should handle accessories, and tires and all the many things motorists need. The logical place to look for automobile necessities is the garage where the man bought the car, and if he is not enabled to get them he is disappointed."

CAMERON ATTACHES SPAULDING ESTATE

Evan S. Cameron of No. 49 St. Mary's street, Brookline, famous football player, and whose friends say he may be scared for life as a result of an alleged assault on him by Leonard H. Spaulding, a wealthy shoe manufacturer, has filed an attachment in the East Cambridge court for $25,000 against Spaulding. Mr. Cameron's attorneys said the attachment was preliminary to the filing of a suit against Spaulding for damages for alleged assault.

Spaulding will be arraigned in the Brookline District Court Friday on the assault charge. Mr. and Mrs. Cameron will appear against him.

City of Boston.
HEALTH DEPARTMENT.
CITY OF BOSTON.
100 SUMMER STREET.

AT a meeting of the Board of Health held this day, the rules ordered, by the Board, heretofore adopted by the Board of Health respecting the handling, keeping and transportation of animals, and the inspection of animals and stable refuse to be there separated and examined, and the following regulations adopted to add thereto:

Whereas, In the opinion of the Board of Health of the City of Boston, the keeping of certain domestic animals and stable refuse (hereinafter termed substances) in the midst of a city is a source of filth and cause of sickness; it is therefore ordered:

First—That no person having control of any premises in the City of Boston shall keep in, or permit to be kept in, or upon any of said premises adjacent thereto, such substances, unless stored in such manner as may be approved by the Board, or directed in a manner approved by the Board of Health.

Second—Receptacles used for storing such substances shall be tight and shall be kept clean and free from offensive matter.

Third—All such substances which accumulate on any premises shall be removed within the twenty hours from the time of accumulation; and in no case shall such offensive matter be kept for more than twenty-four hours.

Fourth—Carts or vehicles containing such substances shall be closed in or covered so as to prevent any public way.

Fifth—Such substances shall be removed only in vehicles holding a permit to do so issued by the Board of Health, and the owner or transportation of such substances shall be done in accordance with the terms of the permit. Permits may be granted to owners of vehicles who are engaged in business approved by said Board. Vehicles holding permits may be changed from time to time within the limit when such substances are being removed, and not upon the street or highway. Such vehicles shall carry with them a permit from such building in a manner not in any way offensive to the public health.

Sixth—Carts or vehicles, when transported through the streets, must be so tightly covered as to prevent any part of the same from falling or dripping into the streets, and so as to prevent the escape of offensive odors.

Seventh—Such substances shall not be unloaded or deposited within the city limits, except upon the premises of a permit from the Board of Health. This shall be in addition to the permit required by said Board. Vehicles holding permits to transport such substances may be changed from time to time within the limit when such substances are being removed, and not upon the street or highway. Such vehicles shall carry with them a permit from such building in a manner not in any way offensive to the public health.

Eighth—Such substances shall not be unloaded or deposited within the city limits, except upon the premises of a permit from the Board of Health. This shall be in addition to the permit required by said Board. Vehicles holding permits to transport such substances may be changed from time to time within the limit when such substances are being removed, and not upon the street or highway. Such vehicles shall carry with them a permit from such building in a manner not in any way offensive to the public health.

Ninth—The manure pit shall hereafter be maintained in the City of Boston.

BOSTON AMERICAN

60 AND 62 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, FEBRUARY 18, 1913.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

Presidential Courtesy and the Killing of Americans

More Americans have been killed in Mexico City. Machine guns have riddled hotels crowded with women and children. Bullets are hurtling through the American Legation, and one of the dispatches told of the narrow escape of our Ambassador from being pierced by a rifle ball.

The German Legation has been shattered by a bomb, and the Belgian Legation has been wrecked by shells.

None of this has disturbed the judicial temperament of President Taft, however. As a judge he would deem it courtesy to permit a succeeding judge to determine a cause rather than take it up in the last days of his term. And in his mental processes the President has never progressed beyond the viewpoint of Justice Taft.

The Taft idea appears to be that as Govenor Wilson will have to deal with the Mexican situation, nothing must be done that might embarrass the new President. There has not been a piece of reasoning like this since the day of the polite sentry who failed to give an alarm at the advance of the enemy because he did not wish to disturb the sleep of the general.

It is to be hoped that the various European governments who have been looking to us to fulfil our obligations of protection will take the same view of the necessity for official courtesy in this matter as does President Taft. It would be awkward for us, wouldn't it, if Germany was sufficiently annoyed by the blasting of her legation to send her marines to Mexico City to see that it did not happen again?

Would we order Germany to take her fighters out of Mexico on the strength of the Monroe doctrine?

What sort of answer would we get if we did?

We were not more vitally concerned in Cuba fifteen years ago than we are in Mexico today. There had not been anything like the peril to American lives and the destruction of American property that the upheavals in Mexico have occasioned—yet we made the Cuban situation our business.

Suppressing the reports of our representatives in Mexico, lest the recital of the worst of the horrors should give rise to a demand for action that he could not resist, may enable Mr. Taft to postpone the act of intervention, but the responsibility he cannot escape is for the American lives taken, the maltreatment of American women and the loss of national dignity that result from his policy of shuffling delay.

The AMERICAN Feels It Has Done a Public Service in Enabling Contractor Norcross to Prove that Money Was Being Wasted on the Custom House Tower

If the plans for the new Boston Custom House are rearranged so that a million dollars' worth of working space can be added to it without extra cost to the government—and it looks as though it can be rearranged—the credit is due entirely to INTELLIGENT PUBLICITY as exemplified by this newspaper.

Because of the exposure by the Boston AMERICAN of the disgraceful condition of affairs in connection with this $2,000,000 building, which has been under construction for three years and yet is hardly commenced, a hearing was held Saturday before the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury at the temporary Boston Custom House.

At that hearing the extraordinary spectacle was presented of a famous builder, protesting, as an American citizen, against the extravagant plans of the architect, who secured the designing of the Custom House through political friends, and pleading to save the government a million dollars by an intelligent rearrangement of those plans.

Orlando Norcross, contractor of the Custom House, was enabled to express his opinion to the government over the head of the architect through the good offices of the Boston AMERICAN.

Mr. Norcross constructed the South Station, Trinity Church and part of the Bankers Trust in Boston and the Metropolitan Tower in New York.

The Custom House mess was enshrouded in red tape. Robert S. Peabody of Peabody & Stearns was handed the Custom House work on a silver platter by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Congressman John W. Weeks and the Republican ring of Massachusetts.

Mr. Peabody's plans were declared to be impractical by the famous contractor who had secured the contract, but Mr. Norcross could not get a hearing because of red tape. Peabody was boss. Norcross had to obey orders, although his patriotic spirit revolted against what he considered criminal waste. The new Custom House might have been continued upon the wasteful, extravagant plans of Mr. Peabody HAD NOT THIS NEWSPAPER CONDUCTED AN INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION.

It did not require an expert to see weaknesses in these plans. Any architect who proposed to give the ground floor of a building on land worth $4 a square foot to charwomen, janitors, boiler rooms and storage was obviously extravagant. And when the plans were further studied it showed that ten stories of the proposed tower were practically useless in this utilitarian age.

The Boston AMERICAN believes in a beautiful Custom House, but a good architect can readily combine usefulness with beauty. By rearranging the elevators so that they could run to the top of the tower and by punching holes in walls which Mr. Peabody had designed windowless. 30,000 square feet of fine office space in the most valuable part of the city can be added, without harming the appearance of the tower one iota.

The Boston AMERICAN informed the public of the situation, and was called sensational for doing so by Mr. Peabody and his political friends.

The Boston AMERICAN ruthlessly slashed the red tape, and Mr. Orlando Norcross was allowed to speak his mind, which he did to some purpose. We have no doubt that the architect will be compelled to be a little more careful of how he squanders the public's money.

Reducing the Living Cost; How We Keep It High

Problems Which the Citizen Must Study if He Wants to Cut His Bills—Beginning of High Prices Not Due to National Causes

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

THE cost of living is the best advertised subject of the present time. Its popularity will continue. It interests everybody who spends money; more particularly those who have to earn the money before they spend it. College boys on a regular allowance are not worrying.

They tell us in books and magazines that the purchasing power of the dollar has steadily fallen, until what it can do for us as compared with what it did for our grandfathers is a shameful difference.

They point out in papers and magazines what may be the causes of the weakness that has assailed the dollar as its worst disease. Some of these causes are: (1) The over-production of gold; (2) the control of corporations; (3) the government purchase of railways; (4) the necessity for getting dividends on watered stock out of the general public.

Read each one of these causes again, slowly.

You are a voter. You have been told about the dignity that the franchise bestows upon you. That dignity is a real thing. Your American citizenship is held up to you as a great possession. It is a great possession. The power of your vote has been sung to you for years. And it has power.

But, on the other hand—(1) You have a home in which your interest is centred; (2) you have a job that takes your attention all day long; (3) you have a body that needs rest all night long.

Now, what can you do today between sunrise and sunset to make dealers sell you the necessities of life at a cheaper rate than you paid yesterday?

You are probably convinced that you can do nothing. And you are pretty near right.

But still you are interested in the cost of living, because you find it harder and harder to make both ends come near each other. Must you sit down and take what they hand out to you, or can you do something about it some time?

You probably can do something, or help to do something.

Two problems are before you:

1. An interest in your own affairs.

2. An equal interest in public affairs.

You will never make good with the contents of the pay envelope if you dodge either of these.

The first means an intelligent administration of your own affairs NOW.

The second means an equally intelligent administration of your affairs as a citizen ALL THE TIME.

II.

These statements are true:

1. The necessities of life cost more than formerly.

2. Wages have not increased as rapidly as the cost of living has increased.

But these statements are also true:

1. The moving picture shows are crowded every night.

2. The slot machines are full of pennies.

3. Saloonkeepers are not failing.

4. The tobacco companies are paying large dividends.

5. The brewery output of New York city alone is reported to be sixty-four millions a year, and still rising.

The first question then is this: Shall we begin to reduce the high cost of living, or shall we begin to study THE COST OF HIGH LIVING?

Both these questions are right at the front door, like hungry wolves. Which must be killed first?

III.

Undoubtedly, the first wolf to kill is the one that answers to the name of the COST OF HIGH LIVING. Once that animal is out of the way it will be easier to get down to business, and to see what is involved in killing the other—the high cost of living.

The beginning of the trouble is not national. It is individual. We are, most of us, poor administrators of our money and our time.

Grafting Girls Meanest in the World. Their Work Sends Many Men to Jail Yearly

Her First Victim Is Her Father, Who Toils to Supply Her Wants—Then She Grafts on Her Men Friends—Later, When Some Man Loves Her, She Makes Him Steal for Her—The Man's a Fool, She's a Devil.

By DOROTHY DIX

NOT long ago I said in this column that I thought that the gentleman who is entitled to receive the Medal for the Meanest Man was the man whose attentions were without intentions. I mean the man who, just to amuse himself and gratify his vanity, deliberately wins a girl's affection, monopolizes her society and keeps her from marrying some other man, although he never has the slightest intention of marrying her himself.

A man, who agrees with my estimate of the meanest man, asks me whom I consider the meanest girl in the world.

If I were called upon to hand out the medals for pure, unadulterated meanness I should bestow the decoration on the girl who is a grafter, the girl who is a hinter, the girl who is a sneak at heart, but who is too cowardly to do her own pocket picking and take the risk of it, but makes some man do it for his love of her.

There are many bad and wicked women, many women who ruin the lives of men through their evil influence, but there is not one who is worse, or who does more harm than the grafting girl. She occupies a fine place in society, and considers herself a model of virtue, and yet there is many a bedrabbled woman of the street who has a kinder and nobler heart than she, and many a woman thief serving her term in prison who is more honest.

The girl grafter is young. She is pretty. She looks soft and tender, but a marble statue has not less feeling nor less sympathy. She is determined to have things, and she does not care how she gets them, nor what suffering the getting of them entails on other people.

The Father of Such a Girl Is Her First Victim

Her first victim is her father. You see him often. A shabby, weary, worn man, with bent shoulders, who toils far beyond his strength to supply his grafting daughter with finery. He is being killed by inches to buy her silks and satins, and send her to places of amusement, but no pity for him ever stirs her stony heart. She would sell his very body and soul for thirty pieces of silver—or thirty cents—if she thought it a good bargain, and the most she could get out of him.

But the grafting girl is only trying her "practice hand on father. She gets in her great and perfect work when she is grown and when she can use all the charms of her womanhood to decoy unwary youths into her parlor and rob them.

Of course the grafting girl is always on the lookout for some rich man to marry, but in the meantime, while she is waiting for the moneybags to come along, she does not disdain a small game, and there is no clerk nor bookkeeper on a small salary, so poor and so needy that she cannot wheedle something out of him in the way of a present or a treat.

She cannot talk two minutes with a man without discanting on how she loves the theatre and longs to see some particular play, and how she dotes on sitting in a box, until she backs him up into a corner where he has to have superhuman courage to refrain from asking her to go with him to see the play that she has determined he shall take her to. And if he does take her she forces him to take her in a taxi, and can no more get her by a restaurant without stopping for supper than he could change the color of his hair.

At Christmas She Holds Up Every Man She Knows

When she has a birthday, or Christmas rolls around, she holds up every man she knows and forces him to send her the expensive presents she wants, and that she has already picked out for him to give her.

And she's so subtle and insidious in her ways that men who have been mulcted never know how it happens that they are always sending her candy and jewelry and silk stockings, and taking her to expensive places of amusement. But she knows. She is perfectly aware of how to work them by hints and cajolery, and playing one man off against another, and telling Bob how perfectly dear and sweet it was of Tom to give her that silver mesh bag, until Bob feels that he will be a piker and a tightwad if he doesn't come across with a handcarved silver vanity case.

The grafting girl is the meanest girl in the world, and here's one of the meanest stories of her meanness, and it's a true one, for I personally knew all the people concerned in it.

As fine a young fellow as God ever made fell in love with a grafting girl, who was as beautiful of body as she was hideous of soul. The boy was poor, but the girl played him along because he was using to supply her with theatre tickets, although he had to half starve himself to do it. One day the two were walking up the street and stopped in at a jeweler's to get the boy's silver watch that had been repaired. While they were waiting for it, the girl spied a diamond bracelet that was worth a thousand dollars, in the case. She asked to see it, tried it on her white round arm, and then turning to the boy she asked, with a languishing gaze into his eyes:

"Would you give this to me if I asked you for it?" "Oh, of course," he laughed. "Well, I do ask you for it. Thank you so much." The boy tried to joke it off, but the grafter held on to the bracelet. The jeweler, who knew and loved the boy, attempted to take it away from her, but she would not surrender the bauble, and in the end she got the trinket. With a face like death and a hand that shook, the boy wrote out a check for the price of it—for the money that he did not have—and that he stole that night from his employer.

His family paid the money, the matter was hushed up, but it killed his mother, and sent him out into the world, a defaulter, who tried to drown the memory of his shame in drink. And the girl grafter wore her diamond bracelet with never a pang of remorse for all the tragedies it cost.

The Man Is a Fool, But Such a Woman Is a Devil

It is the girl grafter, and she grows up into the grafting woman, who is responsible for many a man's dishonesty. Weak of the man? Of course. But what man is strong when the woman he loves is urging him on, tempting him, tender when his hands are full, cold when they are empty?

The man is a fool, but the woman is a devil, for she knows where she's driving him, whereas he is too blind to see. It is the grafting girl whose demand for more and more makes the poor clerk rob the till, and she calmly throws him over when he is caught, and turns her attentions to another man of whom she makes another thief.

And so I say that the meanest girl in the world is the girl who preys on a man's love for her, who induces him to spend on her more than he can afford, and who is willing to send a man to jail and ruin his life just for the sake of gratifying her own love of finery and good times.

THE SECOND MATE

By PERCY SHAW

THE sea lay blue beneath us in the opalescent south
As we left the truant ripples frisking at the harbor's mouth.
As we swung for Panama
Where the festive plazas are;
Never thinking, never dreaming, that our prow so boldly creaming,
Would be smashing soon and crashing on a lonely coral bar.

Sun abeam, she ran the gantlet of a field of bubbling white
Laughed the pilot: "School of fishes catching rainbows in the light."
But the cattle roped below
Bellowed loud before the blow;
Then she shivered like a coward, settled aft and crumpled bowward,
To the call of clucking voices where the starless currents flow.

One by one the boats were lowered as the maddened beasts tore free,
Horned and tailed a thousand devils hurtled past up port and lee,
Scorning shot and fighting oar,
Rattled red-eyed for the shore.
While we splashed and rocked and shouted, beating swine that vicious snouted
Made the flimsy life craft shudder with the women that they bore.

Braced beside the tilting compass calmly stood the second mate,
With a battered prayer book waiting as the firm in spirit wait.
Captain, pilot left the ship;
One farewell was on his lip;
"You're jammed too much w'out me, gang your way nor think about me,
"I will take her into harbor on a longer, stranger trip."

Not a tremor swayed his figure as he saw the boats pull wide.
And the sharks with gleaming bellies glosting eager overside.
He was reading when she tore,
Gasping for the ocean floor.
Chortling pools snuffed out his being while we strained with eyes unseeing,
And the little book rose tossing as we headed for the shore.
